Mussolini Not Smiling
Russia Accuses Hitler
Two Lie In State
England Is Learning

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

A FEW DAYS since Mussolini and Hitler were shaking hands violently in Venice, with beaming faces while photographers took pictures. They would not smile so gaily now, with Mussolini referring to the assassination of Dollfuss, speaking of that crime as one committed "from afar."

That "from afar" could not refer to any country but Germany, or any individual except Hitler.

POPE PIUS'S statements of Dollfuss' "having commended his noble soul to heaven we beg from heaven for real peace for Catholic Austria," will comfort Dollfuss' disconsolate widow and children, devout Catholics, distressed that Dollfusss' cruel murderers would not allow him religious consolation and the Last Sacrament at his death.

In a dispatch to President Miklas, of Austria, Pope Pius refers to Dollfuss as "humane Christian, a most faithful son of the Catholic Church and valient defender of his country."

IN ADDITION to sending an army to the Austrian border, Mussolini, preparing for any move for annexation by Germany and to restore order in Austria in case of need, also sends a large flock of fighting airplanes to sail above his Italian army and impress one and all.

Always effectively dramatic, Mussolini may simply be indulging in gestures that delight him as much as the Fascists' attitude.

On the other hand, he may feel that soldiers and airplanes will soon be necessary.

THE WIDOW of Dollfuss receives condolences from all the world's civilized rulers, including President Roosevelt, who tells her that the "death of Chancellor Dollfuss at the hands of an assassin shocked and grieved me beyond expression. Mrs. Roosevelt joins me in expressing to Madame Dollfuss our sympathy in this great sorrow which has come to her."

The State Department expresses satisfaction with conditions in Austria and believes that the Austrian government has "a firm hold," although savage fighting is reported from Southern Austria where Mussolini has 48,000 troops massed on the frontier.

MUSSOLINI SEEMS to think that Germany and Hitler were connected with the Dollfuss murder, and the organ of Russia's supreme economic council says "German Nazis cannot convince anyone they are not responsible for the action of the Austrian Nazis, because the use of a radio station in Germany by Austrian Nazis confirms the responsibility of German Fascists."

Russians, however, are naturally inclined to take a gloomy view of Hitler's performances since the Hitler government announced its intention of wiping out Communism and its false doctrines as soon as possible.

CHANCELLOR DOLLFUSS with one bullet hole in his neck and other wounds lies in state in the chancellery, where he was shot, thousands of citizens passing by to pay him homage. There are many kinds of killings and of "lying in state." A few days before the courageous and unfortunate Dollfuss was murdered, another man, killed "officially" lay on a slab in the morgue in Chicago, while citizens were allowed to pass by his corpse and admire his wounds and the work that "beauty experts" had done, "lifting his face," dyeing his hair, to change his appearance and deceive the police.

STALIN, of RUSSIA, has seen his first game of polo, with President Roosevelt's representative as umpire and Mr. Bullit's aid as coach.

Stalin allowed men of his Red army to take part in the game, presumably to please the American Ambassador. It should be easy to find among Cossack riders a polo team that would surprise the British and American international players.

What Stalin himself thinks of a game in which men knock little white balls around the grass in these days of submarines, airplanes and international depression is easily guessed.

THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT is learning more and more about airplanes and their importance in the next war. A recent experimental "air attack on London" shows that enemy bombing planes would do "heavy damage," making direct hits on important buildings.

IN THE LATEST experiment, among other buildings destroyed, theoretically, was the Air Ministry building.

Of twenty-one bombers sent to attack the chemical industries building, seven "got clean through to the objective and back again without molestation."

At present it seems impossible to prevent airplane destruction of cities, especially with poison gas bombs, described by a member of the House of Lords, that "would kill every human being within one mile in all directions of the spot where the bomb might fall."

WITH OUR SILLY little American air equipment it would be ridiculous even to attempt any self-defense. We should have to ask an invading air fleet, "Please, how much will you charge to go home." A force of airplanes and submarines of the right kind and size would enable this country to say, "You may attack and you may damage us, but if you do, your navy and your nation will soon cease to exist. Come over here and we shall show you enough to prove it to you."

Ship Over 15,000 Feet Up on Flight to Stratosphere

BULLETIN.

CHICAGO, July 28.—(AP.)—The stratosphere balloonists, talking via short wave radio from an altitude of 15,400 feet some 33 miles from Rapid City, S. D., today informed Maj. Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of the Army Air Corps at Washington, that they planned to ascend to a height of 70,000 feet.

By MICHAEL F. DACEY

RAPID CITY, S. D., July 28.—Maj. William E. eKpner today piloted the world's largest balloon aloft on an ambitious flight into the stratosphere to gather scientific data at a hope-for altitude of 15 miles.

Lifting slowly from the bottom of the natural amphitheater, Moonlight Valley, the got away at dawn, (8:45 a. m. Pittsburgh time), at the command of "up ship" from Maj. Kepner.

Within three minutes the great bag, with its metal gondola suspended beneath, easily cleared the rim of the bowl and began drifting leisurely in a southeasterly direction.

A few minutes later the balloon

2 Killed, 37 Hurt As Mob Storms Plant in Strike

International News Service.

KOHLER, Wis., July 28.—Two companies of National Guardsmen were ordered here today after two men were killed and 37 were wounded in a pitched night battle between strikers and deputy marshals at the Kohler Manufacturing Company plant.

Adjt. Gen. Ralph Immell ordered the troops here from the mobilization camp at Sparta, Wis., after a night of rioting in this model industrial village.

The dead were:

Lee Wakefield, 25, a picket, of Sheboygan.

H. Engleman, Sheboygan.

Hurling stones, pavement bricks and clubs, a mob estimated at 1,000 strikers and sympathizers stormed the plant to be met by a force of deputy marshals commanded by E. R. Scheulke, a captain of the Wisconsin National Guard.

SCORES OF SHOTS FIRED

Scores of shots were fired at the rioters and tear gas cartridges were fired into their midst to halt the attack after two hours of fighting.

In the course of the rioting rocks and other missiles went hurtling through windows and plate glass doors in the administration pottery, employment office and infirmary buildings of the plant. Company officials reported every pane of glass broken in the first and second floors of the administration building.

Scores of women and children took part in the siege, which was witnessed from the administration building by former Gov. Walter

MUSSOLINI READY TO FIGHT

Scorns Diplomacy As Revolution Continues

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

ROME, July 28.—A second wave of Italian troops started northward today to support 48,000 men now concentrated on the Austrian border, the Associated Press has learned.

These reinforcements are not on the border, but are within striking distance of it. They were sent up from military posts in the south to corps headquarters at Bolzano, Udine and Trieste.

Official military circles demonstrated great uneasiness today as reports from Austria showed the Nazi revolution still flamed.

Italian cities from Florence on the south and particularly Rome present an unusual appearance. Normally every fourth man appears to be in uniform, but now about the only uniforms visible on streets are those of Fascist juvenile organizations.

Officers and soldiers have moved north, most of them into training camps and other posts near the frontier.

AVOID AUSTRIA

Travel agencies and the American consulate are advising American tourists going to Germany to avoid Austria and travel through Switzerland.

Premier Mussolini named Giacomo de Martino, the former Italian ambassador to Washington, to represent him at the funeral of the late Chancellor Dollfuss.

Last night, a theater audience jeered and hissed when a news reel picture of Chancellor Hitler, of Germany, appeared on the screen.

The German embassy is constantly guarded by several dozen uniformed police and detectives.

A government spokesman said the morning news from Austria was not alarming but that the Italian government was watching the situation with the greatest

DOLLFUSS RITES HELD TO ROAR OF GUNS AS NEW 'PUTSCH' LOOMS

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

VIENNA, July 28.—Government forces today smashed fighting Nazis over the Jugo-Slav border in Styria, but a Nazi leader declared:

"If (the Nazi forces in) Carinthia can only hold the executive party at bay until tonight we shall be ready to start a new putsch in Styria and this time, believe me, it will be more successful!"

While in Vienna thousands of mourners filed past the bier of the slain chancellor, Engelbert Dollfuss, whose murder Wednesday was the signal for the Nazi putsch, fighting was resumed in the mountains of Styria and Carinthia.

At Eibiswald, near the Jugo-Slav border, the government forces outnumbered the Nazis and were able to drive the enemy from the village. The Nazis, however, took new positions in the mountain pass which forms the connecting link between Styria and Jugo-Slavia.

NAZIS RETREAT

The government soldiers went into the pass after them, the Nazis retreating slowly. Some of them apparently scattered, but the majority, numbering approximately 200, crossed over the Jugo-Slav frontier and surrendered to the Jugo-Slavian border guard.

The peasant population of the province, which is generally regarded as a Nazi stronghold, immediately began talking about revenge and indicated they were awaiting news from Carinthia as to the developments there.

Meanwhile, the Heimwehr and the Catholic storm troops in Graz, the capital of Styria, were celebrating their victory.

They made wholesale arrests of Nazis and even of Nazi sympathizers. They raided clothing stores in search of neckties and other wearing apparel with the colors of the German flag.

People in the streets, even girls wearing dresses showing the combination of black, white and red, were compelled to remove the colors.

A milk dealer arriving in Graz from Andritz reported that more than 100 Nazis had been arrested there. He said they were stripped of clothes and received terrible beatings as "the first treatment."

BITTER FIGHTING

Bitter fighting took place in the vicinity of the festival city of Salzburg during the night, resulting in a number of dead and wounded on both sides.

At Liefering, not far from the German border, a Heimwehr commander was killed and six of his men wounded during a skirmish with Nazis.

The fighting in and around Lamprechtshausen was especially heavy. The Nazis left four dead and 29 wounded on the scene of battle. The government forces also suffered a great number of wounded, 2 of whom died on the way to a hospital.

Clashes also occurred at Mandling where a Heimwehr detachment was attacked by Nazis. The Nazis were beaten off with a loss of 9 dead and 17 wounded, while

AUSTRIA'S CIVIL WAR

Associated Press.

Austria buried her "vest pocket" Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss today as his successor, the towering Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, strove determinedly to put down the civil war precipitated by Dollfuss' death.

While church bells in Vienna tolled a requiem for the martyred Chancellor, troops of Mussolini across the border in Italy marched northward to augment the 48,000 soldiers already stationed at Austria's door.

The Austrian revolt, which reduces to a common denominator of Nazism vs. Fascism, is marked today by fighting close to the borders of three neighboring states which are watching the revolution anxiously—Germany, Italy and Jugo-Slavia—and the border of a fourth state — Switzerland — long distinguished as Europe's outstanding neutral.

CIVIL WAR TOLL 3,000

The number of dead and wounded in the four-day revolt is estimated at 3,000, but the figure does not pretend to be accurate.

Carinthia is described as "a tangle of barbed wire, jammed with soldiers bearing gleaming bayonets."

Vienna itself was quiet as the hour for the Dollfuss funeral neared, but soldiers were everywhere, and the populace was unconcealedly anxious.

The Austrian government expresses confidence in its ability to put down the revolution without help, but Mussolini, the leading evangelist of Fascism in Europe, has increased his Austrian border forces and has indicated he does not intend to let Nazism gain control in Austria, even to the point of Italian intervention.

HAIL VON PAPEN

Germany hails the selection of Franz von Papen as minister to Austria "s a vital move toward the maintenance of peace, and in Austria the choice is considered most conciliatory.

It was felt in Vienna that if word of von Papen's appointment could only be conveyed to the provinces—where many are fighting without any accurate knowledge of current developments in Vienna— would assure the end of the civil warfare.

The fact that Austria's chancellor was being buried on the twentieth anniversary of the date on which Austria declared war on Serbia, precipitating the World War, was a circumstance that added to the day's tensity.

AUSTIN WINNER IN CUP DUEL

BULLETIN.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 28.—(AP.)—Fred Perry, of England, was leading Sidney B. Wood, of the United States, in their Davis Cup singles match here today, winning the first set, 6-1.

Wood squared the match by taking the second set, 6-4.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 28.—Bunny Austin, of England, defeated Frank Shields, of New York, in the first match of the challenege round for the Davis Tennis Cup here today. The score was 6-4, 6-4, 6-1.

A brisk breeze sweeping across the court bothered the American and he seemed unable to gauge his length. Shields frequently overdrove the baseline in rallies and often his first blistering service was wild. Occasionally he doublefaulted and the little Englishman seemed content to lie back and let Shields beat himself.

Frank fought desperately, but he had nothing to offer against his opponent's steady playing.

MINER SLAIN IN UNION FEUD

UNIONTOWN, Pa., July 28.—State Police reported today that they had under arrest a miner who had confessed to the latest killing in the bitter labor feuds in Fayette County.

Joseph Shetty, 25, a miner, was shot dead last night during a free-for-all fight between factions of the Miners Independent Brotherhood and the United Mine Workers.

Under arrest was Joseph Hernansky, 38, of Footdale, who the police said would be charged with murder.

Shetty was a member of the United Mine Workers and Hernansky belongs to the rival union, according to the State Police.

The fighting occurred near the United Mine Workers' picket line outside the H. C. Frick Coke Company's mine at Footdale.

The State Police reported that when they arrested Hernansky in his home they found a .32 caliber revolver and that the prisoner readily confessed.

The brotherhood faction held a meeting near the United Mine Workers picket line last night. The fight started when the meeting ended and the miners were dispersing. According to the police, Hernansky fired blindly into the crowd.

According to the police, the picketers until recently had been stopping passing vehicles to determine whether the drivers were union men and were transporting union-made goods.

BRUSSELS, July 28. — Archduke Otto, pretender to the Austrian throne, and his mother, the former Empress Zita, may attempt to make a sudden airplane dash from Belgium into Austria in the hope of establishing Otto as King of Austria, it has been learned in government circles.

The Belgian government ordered all airports to report immediately the hiring of a private plane.

Additional detectives were dispatched to Steenocherzeel Castle, residence of the Archduke and his mother.

The government informed Otto and his mother they are free to leave Belgium, but that the Belgian government must inform all interested nations the moment they depart.

Residents said Piner had arrested Emery and taken him before a South Chicago Heights judge, where he was fined for permitting a fan dance to operate in connection with a carnival.

World War Manifesto Signed 20 Years Ago

Associated Press.

Twenty years ago today, Count Leopold Von Berchtold signed his name to a 70-word manifesto—the World War was on!

That document, penned at Vienna where army officers again are poring over their war maps, was an open telegram from the Austro-Hungarian Minister of Foreign Affairs to the Serbian.

One of the shortest, mightiest messages of history, it launched a hurricane of hatred which engulfed the world in a tidal wave of blood. It embroiled 27 nations, sacrificed more than 8,000,000 lives.

Two score years ago today, however, no such armageddon was dreamed of, far less expected.

Serbian hatred for Austrians had vented itself in the assassination of Archduke Ferdinand, heir to the Austro-Hungarian throne, and his wife. Austria long had wanted to control the Balkans.

Reviewing the possibilities then apparent, the New York Herald listed 10 nations "that might be involved." Austria-Hungary, Germany and Italy—which actually joined the allies—were foreseen as opposing Serbia, Russia, France and Great Britain. Rumania, Bulgaria and Greece "might" join the struggle.

Russia's mobilization to defend Serbia was seriously viewed, but correspondents cabled American newspapers that Kaiser Wilhelm, of Germany, probably could save world peace.

Then the 8,000,000 lives were sacrificed.

POSSE TRACKS BOB-CAT RAIDER; WILD DOGS FOUGHT

DEPREDATIONS STIR FARMERS TO ACTION

Mysterious Animal Worries District Near Greensburg

Associated Press.

Roving wild life promised an interesting week-end for residents in four sections of Western Pennsylvania—a ravaging bobcat in one, a band of vicious dogs in another, a lost crane in the third, and a so far unseen animal in the fourth.

The bobcat made its appearance at Fayette City, killing chickens, sheep and other small animals, and chasing Mrs. Dominick Crea into her home after she attempted to prevent the bobcat's fatal attack on a pet feline.

H. E. Higbee, of Mercer, sent to Fayette City by state authorities, formed a posse to track the bobcat and put an end to its depredations. He said Mrs. Crea and other Fayette City residents described the animal "as about the size of a dog."

Near Somerset, farmers with weapons handy continued their watch for a trio of vicious dogs who have slain livestock and injured several children, making their forays by night and hiding in the woods by day. Emergency supplies of anti-tetanus serum, rushed from Pittsburgh, have been stocked in several villages.

New Castle authorities are wondering what disposition to make of a huge crane which, apparently lost, flopped to the roof of a building yesterday and made its way into a bakery, creating a near-panic among the workers.

The police placed the bird in a cell, planning to take it into the woods today for releasing.

Westmoreland County residents in the vicinity of Mountain View, four miles from Greensburg, don't know what kind of an animal they're watching for, but they're keeping weapons handy and avoiding deserted yards and porches at night.

Several residents told state authorities of hearing eerie sounds from the "animal," a sort of chattering and then a wailing shriek.

One farmer said his dog, which raced towards a woods from which the sounds emanated, returned soon afterwards with a claw-torn face. Others said their cows, hearing the sounds, became panic-stricken.

Weather Conditions

Generous showers, accompanied by thunderstorms, occurred over the Ohio Valley yester and last night, and there were scattered showers over the Atlantic Coast states and the Gulf states. The low pressure that covered the eastern portion of the country yesterday, and which brought the showers, is now centered over the St. Lawrence Valley, and extends down over the Middle Atlantic States. The skies are clear this morning over the Ohio Valley states and westward, due to the high which now occupies the entire plains states section. This high is also attended by moderately cool weather, and effectually broke the protracted hot spell over the interior of the country. There were no 100 degree temperatures yesterday except in Texas, Idaho, Utah, Nevada and Arizona.

River Conditions

There is a slight rise in the Monongahela River and in the Kiskiminetas, due to rainfall over those portions of the basin. Rowlesburg, W. Va., reported 1.05 inches of rainfall; Thomas, 1.45; Fairmont, 1.90; Morgantown, .98; Greensboro, 3.20, and Charlerol, .92. At West Newton there was 1.20 inches, and Johnstown .95. KNIFE ORDERED FOR CRIPPLE

PHILADELPHIA, July 28.—(AP.)—A court yesterday ordered for crippled Johnny Hoffman, Jr., 16, the surgical aid which his father denied him because of religious objections.

Judge Theodore Rosen, of Municipal Court, ordered an operation on the boy's leg, saying:

"The court will assume responsibility."

The elder Hoffman, his eyes flashing, cried:

"Any man who lays hand or knife on my boy does so at his own peril. It is a defiance of God!"

The judge replied:

"I am confident the operation will be in conformity with the word of God. I honestly believe in your sincerity and have respect for certain of your beliefs, although I cannot go all the way with you."

The boy's right leg was broken two years ago.

2 DIE, 37 HURT IN MOB CLASH AT KOHLER

Women and Children Join Rioters; Clubs, Stones, Shots Fly

J. Kohler, president of the company, and other plant officials.

GUNS, CLUBS, TEAR GAS

The rioting culminated a day of lesser disorders in which 75 deputies crashed through the picket lines surrounding the plant to convoy a car load of coal necessary to keep the village water system in operation. The pickets had previously turned the coal shipment back in violation of an agreement between the striking union men and the Kohler company.

The mob first assembled at the pottery building to jeer police and plant executives. Finally a rock hurtled through a window in the building, and the crowd went into action.

Deputies and police launched their attack with pistols, night sticks and tear gas when the demonstration reached its height at the administration building. For two hours the fighting raged. The mob was finally forced to disperse.

Troops in Minneapolis Drive 'Red' Editors Out

MINNEAPOLIS, July 28.—(INS.)—Communism today developed into a bitter issue in the Minneapolis truck drivers' strike which has put this city of almost 500,000 population under martial law.

Employers in the thick of the fight again declared in a formal statement to the federal mediators that the leadership of the strike is Communistic.

Two alleged New York Communist editors hurriedly left town "by request" of the military authorities. They were James P. Cannon and Max Schachtman, editors of the Militant and the New International, respectively. They had been held for 36 hours by the civil and military authorities.

New Troop Threat Hurled In Oregon Dock Strike

SAN FRANCISCO, July 28.—(AP.)—Developments at two points threatened today to bring the Pacific Coast maritime strike to a head.

Waterfront employers in San Francisco offered armistice terms, but the delay of allied ship and dock workers in drafting their reply suggested another crisis in the walkout. In Oregon, Gov. Julius L. Meier threatened action unless the port of Portland were reopened.

The Governor, who has mobilized 1,500 National Guardsmen, declared he will "use the authority" of his office unless peaceful means restore the free movement of cargo and ships by Monday.

Charge Girl Sent Obscene Letter

Stella C. Hokaj, 24, of 2306 Luray avenue, McKeesport, accused of sending an obscene letter through the mail, was to be arraigned today before the United States Commissioner. She was arrested yesterday on a complaint filed by Postoffice Inspector D. H. Stephens.

Federal Court attaches said it was the first time they could recall of a woman being arrested here on an offense of that nature. The complaint charges that the letter was mailed August 14, 1933, to Walter Kasprzyk, of 2917 Boyd street, McKeesport, husband of an acquaintance of the defendant.

Federal Government Must Help Labor Curb Radical Groups, Says Richard Washburn Child

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD

Noted Author and Former U. S. Ambassador to Italy.

STRIKES flare up on all sides.

Whatever the significance of the figures, it is true that since the NRA got into swing the number of producing hours lost in strikes has about doubled.

Often the "strike" is really a contest not between employer and employe, but between labor unions and the rebels within them.

What kind of strikes?

A long time ago in Washington, when the NRA was being formulated in Washington, a man with some foresight went to the President and others influential in his administration and said:

"In practice this NRA will provide a possible wholesome control of industry in its relation to fair competition, to the public and to labor.

"But in practice, will it provide a fair control over labor in its relation to industry and to the public, and will it result in well ordered defense of the labor cause or will it breed internal discords dangerous to the cause of organized labor itself?"

Mr. Child.

The answer made was that the NRA could provide for a paternal, beneficent control of labor equal to the paternal beneficent control of the industrialists.

WHERE IS IT NOW? WHERE?

PASSING over any comments made by employers, two more important factors in American life ask this question—"Where is it now?"

One is the public—the entire nation, a nation of law-abiding, taxpaying, consuming, human beings. The other is American labor itself.

A new deal which disciplines business and manufacturers "for their own good," which says, like the parent sometimes, "I am going to spank you but, little Fred, this hurts me more than it hurts you," has provided no blue eagles for labor.

It could. Good labor practice could be approved and the bad disciplined. Little protection, not only for the fair deal to the employer, but little protection for the fair deal to the public and, above all, little protection of the fair deal to good labor from bad "labor."

The mob is not organized labor by a long shot.

Foreign fomented riots are not organized labor by any means.

The new radical "unions" which would like to cut the throats of the decent leaders of organized labor and ride on the backs of decent organized laborers are not American at all.

WHAT we have seen happening in many corners of the country are mushrom growths of radical groups who conceive a strike to be a revolutionary nucleus, who want to put grip on the throat of government and make it say "Uncle!" who reach out to put more rings in the nostrils of the taxpayer, the consumer and the public, and, above all, attempt to snatch out of the hands of organized labor its prestige and its power and throw the whole business to the mob.

The causes for strike may be legitimate.

What has that to do with the case at all if the action taken is not a strike, but a slap in the face of civilization itself?

What has any cause for striking to do with it if there is no strike, but instead an attempt by radicals to discredit and unseat true labor organizations?

As the public begins to see many of these "strikes" it also begins to see that sooner or later two factors must discipline them.

ONE IS LABOR ITSELF.

THE OTHER IS THE GOVERNMENT.

THE NEW DEAL, when it took on discipline of the employer, took on responsibility for discipline of the red "unionists," whether the New Deal likes it or not.

For years organized labor in the United States has fought off those who would like to be anarchists, communists, revolutionists and theorists under the cloak of organized labor.

If the New Deal, in the process of exacting a fair deal from employers to labor, has failed to put into effect a protection to labor from new revolutionary "labor" organizations, it is time to treat all labor as were treated all manufacturers and businessmen—a system of separate decency from demoralization.

There is still one-half of the New Deal left undone.

The blue bird of approval is just as usable by a benevolent, paternal government for a labor union as for a soap factory.

The government which has gone so far in aiding the recognition of organized unions has responsibility today to make official distinction between licenses to be given officially to REAL labor unions and the license which is seized by radical groups to stick up employers, public and then fellow-workers.

Justice requires that the task of distinction between what is fair and foul should not be left to legitimate labor unionism alone.

THE facilities and the obligations provided by the New Deal to give order to industry, to insure justice to labor and public, and to eliminate cut-throat competition may turn out to be of less importance to our civilization than the facilities and obligations owed by a paternal government to organized labor in its battle to oust the cuckoos of revolution and rowdyism which lay their eggs in its nest.

IT MAY TAKE THE BLUE EAGLE TO GET THE CUCKOOS OUT.

Will the administration, which claimed under legislation the right to regulate industry, now have the political power to extend the blue regimentation of management to the blue regimentation of labor?

If it has not, then planned economy will have to say weakly to the public:

"Don't ask me for plans. Appeal to organized labor to cast out its own devils or use the law and whatever powers of action which are allowed you by the Constitution. I'm all planned out!"

Riverman Posts Bond In Killing

John M. Hysmith, of Elizabeth, captain of the river steamer Heslop, was to post bond before the coroner today in connection with the death of Isaiah Porter, 49, Negro, of Robert's Hollow, Elizabeth.

EXTRA SESSION FORESEEN BY POLITICIANS

Legislature Expected To Be Called Soon in Relief Plight

HARRISBURG, July 28.—(AP.)—Another special session of the General Assembly—this one "wide open" though necessitated by Pennsylvania's relief plight—is foreseen for next month by political observers in Gov. Pinchot's declaration of what he will do if he calls the legislators together.

In political circles, attention was directed at the Governor's statement that, due to nearness of a crucial election, "the Legislature may be more willing than usual to pass laws in the public interest."

Two dates, August 13 and 20, were mentioned in speculation on the time of the session's opening.

The Governor insisted, in a statement issued yesterday, that he is doing all in his power to avoid convening the assembly.

If he finally concludes a special session is necessary, however, he promised to give the taxpayers "their money's worth." He said:

"If the people have to pay for an extra session for unemployment relief it will cost no more to give them their moneys' worth in other forms of relief also."

To bring tax reduction, liberal labor laws, utility regulation and other subjects into the session's legal scope of action, he said he would include those topics in his call when and if a call is made.

State Democratic leaders declared a special session necessary after conferring in Washington to obtain more federal relief for Pennsylvania after the end of August, present deadline for federal aid. Attorney General William A. Schnader, Republican candidate for Governor, opposes an extra session, as do the State Chamber of Commerce and the State Newspaper Publishers' Association.

DILLINGER, SR., GOES ON STAGE

INDIANOPLIS, July 28.—(AP.)—John Dillinger, Sr., the Mooresville (Ind.) farmer whose son led a gang credited with obtaining $500,000 in bank robberies, is going on the stage—because he needs money.

His first appearance will be in a theater here tomorrow. He celebrated his seventieth birthday Friday.

With him, capitalizing on the notorious exploits of his outlaw son who was buried here last Wednesday, will be another son, Hubert Dillinger, and a daughter and son-in-law, Mrs. Audrey Hancock and Emmett Hancock.

A few days ago the elder Dillinger expressed concern over how he was to pay for the expenses of the funeral. Neighbors in the Mooresville community, where he is a respected church member, were reported considering a present of funds.

However, he decided the stage offer might provide a means of paying his bills.

HENDERSON, Ky., July 28.—(AP.)—Belief of bank employes and investigating officers that one of the four bandits who looted the Farmers Bank and Trust Company here of $37,327 was George (Baby Face) Nelson, America's public enemy No. 1, was being checked today by finger-print experts in the Department of Justice at Washington.

Choir Singer Arrested By Erring Police Freed

An East End choir singer mistakenly arrested as a burglary suspect today said that he had been locked in the Oakland Police Station all night, was denied the use of a telephone and was refused bail.

William Norton, 28, of 5112 Bayard street, was arrested early Wednesday morning while he said he was walking to a corner store to buy cigarets a few minutes after returning from his country club. He said:

"The police said they were looking for a burglary suspect and they arrested the first man they saw—that was me.

"At the station they wouldn't let me use a telephone to call home and they also refused me bail. They said that I couldn't get out for a million dollars."

The next morning, however, it took Magistrate Theodore L. Moritz one minute to hear his case—and he was freed.

ARRESTS REVEAL KIDNAPING OF FILM MAN AND BRIDE

LON CHANEY'S AIDE VICTIM OF GANG

Honeymoon Couple Seized in Mountains; Pay for Release

LOS ANGELES, July 28.—(AP.)—Three men and the wife of one were under arrest here today as the asserted kidnapers of John Jeshke, former companion of the late Lon Chaney, and his bride of a few weeks.

First revelation of the alleged kidnaping came with the arrests last night. Authorities said the couple was kidnaped July 16.

Those held, officers said, gave the names of Floyd Briton and his wife, Ida; Cyril Russell and Jerry Lamouroux. They were booked on suspicion of kidnaping, robbery and attack. Two other women are sought as suspects, officers said.

Jeshke, who acted as make-up man and chauffer for Chaney, was a beneficiary in the sum of $25,000 in the will of Mrs. Chaney, who followed her husband in death.

RING DEMANDED

The Jeshkes were married four weeks ago authorities said, and went to spend their honeymoon in a cabin at Big Pines, mountain resort 270 miles from here.

They went to the resort on July 15, they told officers, and that night two men and a woman came to their door, demanding a $3,500 ring he had received from Mrs. Chaney.

Jeshke said he explained he had disposed of the ring. The kidnapers then trussed Jeshke and his bride with rope and next day they started for Los Angeles, authorities said.

In Hollywood they forced Jeshke to go into his bank, officers asserted, where he cashed a check for $76.

PROMISED MORE CASH

Then they drove to a secluded canyon road in the Hollywood hills, where first Jeshke was pushed out of the machine and later Mrs. Jeshke was released. Jeshke said he first was forced to promise to deliver an additional $50 cash to a representative of the kidnapers under pain of death.

Thursday, authorities revealed, Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz was advised by a friend of the Jeshkes of the kidnaping. The Sheriff got in touch with Jeshke at his residence, and the kidnap victim gave authorities the details.

He revealed he was to meet a man in downtown Los Angeles last night with the $50.

Authorities sent a squad of officers to the designated intersection with Jeshke and when Floyd Briton appeared he was arrested. The other arrests followed.

FORMER SLAVE WHIPPED TO TO DEATH

Tenant's Fatal Beating Angers Whites in Mississippi

PELAHATCHIE, Miss., July 28.—(AP.)—The whipping to death of Henry Bedford, a Negro born in slave days, sent anger surging through this little town today.

Four white men, accused of murder, were hurried to jail at Brandon last night. Sheriff Virden Therrill, of Rankin County, who made the arrests, said he had delayed preliminary hearings because feeling was running high.

The Negro had been known to almost every resident here for years.

Alex Murray, John Scales and Benny Cawthorne, all of Pelahatchie, and M. M. Dotson, of Shiloh, were under arrest. They were denied bond, pending a hearing next Wednesday.

Cawthorne charged that the Negro, a tenant of his father, D. W. Cawthorne, talked "disrespectfully" when they disputed a rental agreement.

The sheriff said the men took the aged Negro to a secluded spot outside the town Wednesday and whipped him with a heavy leather strap.

The sheriff said he was notified of the beating five hours later and went to the scene with Cawthorne and a doctor.

He said the Negro was lying on the ground, unable to move, and although he was taken into town and given medical treatment, he died that night.

Charging Horse Misses Presidential Car on Eve of Return

International News Service.

HONOLULU, T. H., July 28.—President Roosevelt will head homeward today aboard the U. S. S. Houston after the long inspection cruise, giving him a thorough background of economic and military needs of United States possessions in the Atlantic and Pacific.

Mr. Roosevelt was deeply concerned over the European situation precipitated by the assassination of Chancellor Dollfuss. He was closely following radio reports to the Houston, but made no comment.

Returning from an inspection of Pearl Harbor naval base yesterday, the President had a close escape when a runaway horse, frightened by police sirens, raced into the automobile following his car.

Several Washington newspaper correspondents were bruised and cut. A secret service man jumped from the running board of the President's car to avoid the wild horse, drawing a vegetable cart from plunging into Mr. Roosevelt's car. The secret service operator suffered an arm bruise when his fist shattered the glass windbreaker on the President's car.

BLAST WRECKS SHIP, 9 DIE

HALIFAX, N. S., July 28.—(AP.)—A bare report of a sea tragedy which claimed the lives of nine Nova Scotia fishermen was received here today in a wireless message from the Danish steamship Alssund which advised that a Lunenburg schooner had been wrecked by an explosion.

The Alssund's captain said the majority of the schooner's crew were safe aboard his vessel, but nine were still missing.

The message came to the East Coast Radio here through its Casno Station, which was endeavoring to secure further details from the steamship.

Survivors of the explosion will be landed near North Sydney today.

The Alssund wirelessed she had picked up several members of a schooner's crew. The scooner was referred to as the "S. P. W., of Lunenburg," but no such ship could be identified here. Shipping registers failed to identify the vessel.

CARNEGIE GIRL DIES IN CRASH

A Carnegie girl is dead and a Pittsburgh youth is in an Erie (Pa.,) hospital today, victims of a vacationists' automobile ride. Another girl and youth escaped hurts, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

Miss Schwarten

McDonald, 22, of 931 Tyndall street, plunged through a guard rail and went down a 40-foot embankment. The accident occurred at a curve on a highway four miles south of Fair View, Pa.

Cyril Ehrman, 23, 3033 Bergman street, riding with the Schwarten girl in the rumble seat, received internal injuries. Miss Helen Barthen, 21, 700 Idlewood avenue, Carnegie, and McDonald, both riding in the front seat, escaped hurts. The four had been summering at Edinboro Lake, Pa.

ROBIN ANSWERS MASTER'S VOICE

Having a tame robin as a pet is a lot of fun, according to Jack Patterson, 909 South Braddock avenue, but it is also a great deal of trouble.

"Petey," the robin, is as tame as a dog. Dogs are fed only once or twice a day, but "Petey" is heard chirping at the kitchen door about every 10 minutes.

Then again, dogs can only run away, but "Petey" takes to his wings when he is bothered by his master. As a result, Jack spends a lot of time climbing trees and telephone poles in pursuit of his pet. Sometimes, however, the bird will return home when he hears the familiar:

"C'm 'ere, Pete."

Although "Petey" is only four weeks old, he serves as an alarm clock for the Patterson family. Every morning he rouses late sleepers with his cheerful song.

The pet is a favorite of little Cynthia Stone, Jack's 13-month-old niece. Whenever the baby is taken for a walk in its carriage, the bird perches itself on the handle and gets a ride around the block gratis.

STRATOSPHERE GONDOLA

STRATOSPHERE BALLOON OFF

disappeared from view, gaining altitude slowly as the sun's rays warmed and expanded its 210,000 cubic feet of hydrogen gas.

SCIENTIFIC DATA

Accompanying Maj. Kepner were Capt. Orvil A. Anderson, alternate pilot, and Capt. Albert W. Stevens, scientific observer in command of the elaborate laboratory of instruments with which he hopes to gather important scientific data from the highest point in the stratosphere ever reached by man.

A ground crew of 120 United States soldiers guided the gondola and bag with hand ropes to the southeast part of the bowl. This was done to make certain that the balloon would gain sufficient altitude before reaching the jagged cliffs which rim the northeast extremity of the basin.

The sun was just rising when the command to cast off was given by Maj. Kepner.

At an altitude of 500 feet the balloonists tossed off a quantity of ballast. Fifty feet higher another load of emergency ballast was cut loose, and the ballon began to gain altitude more steadily.

30,000 SEE TAKEOFF

Two airplanes droned above the huge bag as it ascended into the dawn-streaked skies.

Thirty thousand persons lined the hills and rim of the bowl to witness the takeoff. Thousands had waited all night, watching preparations of the ground crew and scientists.

Mrs. Kepner and Mrs. Anderson, both radiant and confident of the success of their respective husbands, witnessed the takeoff from the floor of the natural grandstand.

The three balloonists will depend on a short-wave radio apparatus for their only contact with the earth during the flight, which is expected to last for 12 hours or more.

They plan to hold the mammoth balloon at the ceiling—a hoped-for altitude of 15 miles—for two hours to make complete scientific observations and records.

Balloonists Report List And Drop of 2,000 Feet

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 28. — A voice from out of the sky above the Black Hills of the Dakotas announcing "We had a hell of a list just then" was one of the first messages received today from the three intrepid balloonists who took off from Rapid City, S. D., at dawn in an attempt to ascend 15 miles into the stratosphere.

This message was picked up at the offices of the National Geographic Society here, where arrangements have been made to listen-in on the two-way radio communication which the balloonists intend to maintain with ground crews at Des Moines and Burlington.

LUGGAGE CLUE IN HATPIN DEATH

WINFIELD, Kan., July 28.—(AP.)—A suitcase sealed to all except a brother was looked to today for a solution of the death of Mrs. Leora Baird, 50, estranged wife of a Kansas rancher. Her charred body, a hatpin piercing the brain, was found near Hackney, Kan., yesterday.

A note by Mrs. Baird asked that no one except the brother, J. O. Spencer, of Sayre, Okla., be permitted to have the suitcase found in her room.

Mystified by the bizarre circumstances of the death, Coroner A. E. Morris ordered an inquest. He had not determined whether she died of the hatpin wound or was burned to death. Finding no evidence of a struggle, officers considered a suicide theory.

Mrs. Baird got off a bus near Hackney Thursday, remarking that she wanted to visit friends. Workmen who found the body recalled that they saw a woman alight from the bus and dart along hedge rows in an apparent attempt to escape notice.

RELIEF PARTS FAMILY OF NINE

Shipped back to Norristown by the Federal Transient Bureau, the Kendigs could get no cash for food. It's against the rules. Food orders were barred for lack of an address to which to mail them. Another rule. No rent could be paid to establish an address. Rule No. 4.

Benton, Sr., and Benton, Jr., 14, went to the YMCA. Mother Kendig and Robert, 3, went to the YWCA. Vivian, 18, Lloyd, 11; Charles, 8; Thomas, 7, and Gloria, 6, went to the House of Detention.

RAIDING MANIAC SPREADS PANIC

DANVILLE, Ill., July 28.—(AP.)—A cat-man maniac had this city in a grip of terror today.

Double shifts of policemen patroled the exclusive residential district on the northwest side, where the phantom has appeared three nights in succession, attempted to attack three women, and entered at least a dozen homes.

Once he threatened to slit a baby's throat if its mother made an outcry and three times he has escaped gunfire unscathed by leaping into bushes.

Both day and night shifts of the city police guarded the district comprising four or five blocks, where the city's finest homes are situated. The marauder was apparently a maniac, police said, for he returned each night to the scene of previous encounters despite the fact heavy guards were in evidence.

STILL BATTLING TROPIC MALADY

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, July 28.—Plans are under way for Edwina Booth, blonde film actress, to enter Hollywood Hospital for treatment of a tropical malady which doctors say she contracted while making a picture in Africa several years ago.

The latest move in the star's long battle to regain her health is due to Joan Crawford, friends of the family reveal. Yesterday she offered use of the room she endowed in the hospital, as well as the services of her personal physician, Dr. William Branch.

Miss Booth's mother declared her daughter's illness has resisted all efforts of physicians to date.

Other film celebrities, including Raquel Torres, Stephen Ames and Director W. S. Van Dyke, have offered aid.

Sunday to Rest of U. S. Waynesburg's Rain Day

WAYNESBURG, July 28.—(AP.)—It may be Sunday to the rest of the world, but tomorrow's the day of the big rain, to Waynesburgers.

Should rain fall tomorrow, it will mark the sixtieth consecutive July 29, with two exceptions, in this town.

Last year, two short showers served to sustain the tradition. Farmers are hoping for more this year, as an aid to their drought-stricken crops.

Ministers of Waynesburg, not counting on fulfillment of the tradition too much, have announced no change in the schedule for the usual outdoor services, but Byron Daily, Waynesburg druggist, offers to bet a hat with any and all takers that rain falls as expected.

The Story of Elijah ∴ CHAPTER IV
Told in Pictures by Dan Smith

King Ahaziah, who reigned in Israel after the death of Ahab, fell through a lattice in Samaria and was sick; and he sent messengers to inquire of Baalzebub, the god of Ekron, whether he should recover of his disease.

King Ahab, when told of this, sent a captain with fifty men to the top of a hill to bid Elijah to come down, but Elijah called for fire to come down from heaven, and fire came and consumed the captain and his fifty.

Then the angel of the Lord came to Elijah and bade him arise and go up to meet the messengers of the king, and ask whether they were going to Baalzebub, god of Ekron, because there was no God in Israel.

And when Elisha had said to Elijah, "I pray thee, let a double portion of thy spirit be upon me," behold, a chariot of fire appeared, and horses of fire, and parted them. And Elijah went up by a whirlwind into heaven. (A New Series Starts Next Saturday.)

U. S. Cattle Buying Big Factor in Drought Aid

(Paul Mallon, whose signature usually appears over this dispatch, is on a brief vacation. During his absence the column will be composed of contributions from leading Washington correspondents.)

WASHINGTON, July 28.—A really huge operation in the battle against the forces of nature is being carried on by the government without being made generally manifest to the public. This is the cattle-buying program of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in connection with the drought.

The problem was not so much how to get surpluses into needy areas as how to do it without dislocating the existing system and doing injury to normal business and upsetting markets.

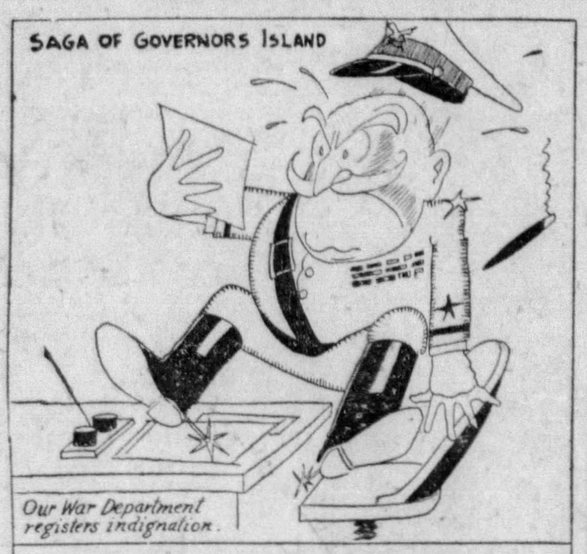
PURCHASE

AAA decided to use the machinery of the Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Animal Industry to work the plan. The Bureau of Animal Industry has cattle inspectors all over the country. When an area has been designated by the drought experts as an emergency region, the cattle inspectors move in and start to buy cattle from farmers who want to sell.

AAA's part of the job ends with the purchase of the cattle. As soon as the animals are bought, they become the property of FERA's surplus relief corporation.

FERA, through its state and local relief organizations, ships the cattle from the farms to the nearest meat packing center.

At these centers, the cattle are slaughtered and the meat canned, to be distributed among the needy next winter.



SAGA OF GOVERNORS ISLAND
Our War Department registers indignation.
A LONE PIRATE RECENTLY ROWED OVER TO GOVERNORS ISLAND, HELD UP THE FORT WHICH PROTECTS NEW YORK, TOOK A SENTRY'S GUN AND PRISONER AWAY FROM SAID SENTRY, AND THEN ROWED BACK TO BROOKLYN.
THE WAR DEPARTMENT CERTAINLY SHOULDN'T STAND FOR SUCH CARRYINGS-ON. IF SENTRIES TAKE TO GIVING THEIR GUNS TO STRANGERS, AND PRISONERS TAKE TO BOATING WITH TRAVELING MEN, SOONER OR LATER IT IS GOING TO CAUSE TALK.
ONE MAN SHOULDN'T BE ALLOWED TO HOLD UP A FORT. SOMEBODY SHOULD DO SOMETHING. OUR ARMY DESERVES ADEQUATE PROTECTION!
—Malone-1934.

Move to Evacuate Barren Farms Strikes Snag

HITCH

There is one point where the trick does not work so smoothly and the government finds itself competing with private business.

That is in connection with the hides of the animals. The hides are worth a good deal of money and the government has been letting the meat packers keep the hides as part payment for their services.

But, unlike the meat, the hides are not kept off the market. They find their way to market almost immediately, and the hide people are grumbling that their market has been demoralized by the sudden over-supply.

The next problem which is being considered, of shifting families from the localities where they have been rendered destitute and where there is no possibility, for some time to come, of their making a living, will not be so easy. There, government planners will come up against human inertia and the human will and are likely to encounter resistance.

ITALY RUSHES MORE TROOPS TO BORDER

TIRED OF DIPLOMACY

Premier Mussolini is represented as feeling that any further diplomatic overtures can serve no useful purpose. He appeared determined today to lend a prompt hand if he feels the situation warrants.

Spokesmen for the government, however, insist that intervention is not necessarily imminent. They are watching Vienna with a particularly keen eye today, fearful that the funeral of the assassinated Chancellor Dollfuss may prove the match to set off new disorders.

Government spokesmen express the hope that the Austrians will be able to settle their own affairs, but they make it plain that whether the Nazi "menace" comes from within or without Austria, Italy does not intned to permit Nazis to gain the upper hand.

Reports that Italian troops had already crossed the frontier into Carinthia, Austria, where fighting is underway, were emphatically denied.

PRINCE PRAISED

(Such unconfirmed reports were received yesterday at Belgrade).

The declaration of Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, head of the Austrian government, in Vienna last night, that no concessions which infringe Austrian liberty would be made to Nazlism was received here with strong applause.

Starhemberg's pledge to follow faithfully policies of the late Chancellor Dollfuss is viewed as particularly reassuring, coming as it did after announcement that Franz von Papen, Germany's vice chancellor, would be sent to Vienna in a peace gesture.

The authoritative newspaper, Popolo de Roma, called Hitler's letter appointing von Papen "one of the most singular diplomatic documents of our times," printing today a scathing attack on Hitler, who only a few weeks ago was Mussolini's guest in Venice.

FIERCE BATTLE NEAR BORDER

MARIBOR, Jugo-Slavia, July 28—(AP.)—Reports from the border today indicated that the Austrian Nazis in Carinthia and Southern Styria were offering a desperate resistence to Austrian government forces who were attacking with artillery.

The Nazis have mined all the roads to prevent the passage of the big guns.

Thousands of them are fighting with their backs to the Jugo-Slav border. If they are compelled to retreat they will automatically be interned in Jugo-Slavia.

Hundreds of Nazi fugitives have already crossed into Jugo-Slavia at Radgoma, Dravograd and Prevalje, the latter just across the line from Bleiburg, Carinthia, where the fighting was heavy.

Together with the other fugitives from previous days, the total number of Austrian Nazis now in Jugo-Slavia since the beginning of their Wednesday putsch exceed 700. Most of them are youngsters—high school and university students—but there are a few peasants.

MILITIA QUITS GRETNA CAMP

CAMP MUIR, MT. GRETNA, Pa., July 28.—(AP.)—Taps will be sounded for the 1934 encampment of the Pennsylvania National Guard today, but one unit remains to answer reveille with Maryland and Virginia units of the 29th Division at Indiantown Gap.

The 176th Field Artillery, from the Pittsburgh district, is the lone Keystone State outfit to remain. The rest, beginning with the Western Pennsylvania units, began moving out last night.

The trek homeward will continue for 18 hours, until 31 troop trains have moved. Division and state staff officers and cavalrymen from the Harrisburg districts leave last.

5,000 Armed Nazis On German Border

LONDON, July 28.—(Universal.)—Five thousand armed Austrian Nazis are standing by on German soil within a half mile of the Austrian border north of Salzburg.

They form a regiment of the Austrian Legion, fugitive Nazis whom Germany welcomed a year ago. Since the assassination of Chancellor Dollfuss they have been waiting to cross into Austria to the aid of their comrades in Styria and Upped Austria.

Europe Afraid Austrian Thing May Fizzle Out

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

What Europe fears most of all now is peace.

It dreads that this Austrian thing will amount to nothing.

So the gentle diplomats will pour oil on the raging fire.

The most important man in Europe today is a fellow named Getcha. You never heard of Gen. Getcha? He is the bird who yells, "Getcha men together."

When the men are together there be 20,000,000 of them and, Lafayette there we are not.

the Heimwehr outfit lost one killed and one wounded.

NAZIS CARRY ON

Desperate fighting is under way in Southern and Western Austria, Nazis, their casualties in the thousands, continue grimly to carry on the four-day-old warfare.

Battles are on at numerous points near Salzburg, next to the German border.

An official communique today said severe fighting is in progress in Carinthia, Southern Austria, near the Italian and Jugo-Slavian borders.

Another sector of conflict is Eastern Tyrol. Feldkirchen, close to Switzerland, and Klagenfurt, Carinthia's picturesque capital, are centers of civil war. The government is rushing troops in increasing numbers to that section in an effort to stamp out the revolt.

Carinthia is a tangle of barbed wire. It is jammed with soldiers bearing gleaming bayonets. The wounded are pouring in from neighboring battlefields.

DOLLFUSS FUNERAL

There was no serious fighting in Vienna itself today as the capital prepared to bury Engelburt Dollfuss, the little "gamecock" chancellor whose assassination Wednesday was the bloody signal for revolt.

Guns, however, bristled everywhere, evidence of fears his funeral might be an occasion for fresh outbreaks.

Dollfuss survived by scarcely five months the many Socialist victims of the February civil war.

Thousands viewed the body as it lay in state.

With Dollfuss dead, his program continues to live, guided by his successor, Prince Ernst von Starhemberg. "Do not depart one inch from the way prescribed by Dollfuss" was his plea to the nation.

Reports were circulated that Franz von Papen, named Germany's minister to Austria, would attend the funeral.

The fighting raged today around Salzberg as the famous annual festival opened with a presentation of the tragedy "Everyman."

NAZIS CONQUERED

Fighting in Styria, where the revolution broke out with volcanic violence Wednesday night, has subsided. The government appears to have conquered Nazi resistance there.

The government also announces it has taken St. Veit in Carinthia, storming it with artillery fire.

Casualties in all fighting since the revolt began are estimated at close to 3,000, but there are no official figures.

That the subversive movements are threatening to spread in the Tyrol is indicated by reports of fighting at Lienz, Eastern Tyrol.

At Ischl, the famous spa where Emperor Francis Joseph spent his summers, a hall in which patients take drinking cures was bombed. Much material damage was done. There were no casualties.

The government, in view of these acts of terrorism, has made wholesale arrests at Ischl and Lienz of Nazi sympathizers and persons who formerly belonged to the Nazi party.

ITALY'S WAR BIRDS, TRIM AND FIERCE—AND READY

NEW FIGHTING

Reports of new fighting came today from St. George Namsandhof, Carinthia. Nazis occupied the heights surrounding the town. Government forces soon gained the upper hand and forced the Nazis to retreat, leaving nine dead and 16 wounded. Two machine guns were captured.

Nazis attacked the town of Seekirchen, near Salzburg, but were repulsed. In outer sections of Salzburg Nazis tried to gather repeatedly but the Heimwehr promptly dismissed them.

Eighty were reported injured at Badaussee, Styria, some 15 miles from Phyrn Pass, in a skirmish between Nazis and government forces.

From Styria have come official reports claiming the revolution is dying down, although at the cost thus far to federal troops of two officers and seven soldiers killed and 16 wounded. Bombings and other acts of terrorism, however, serve to make the Styrian population exceedingly nervous.

Near Graz a mast carrying high tension electric wires was dynamited during the night, plunging the city into darkness. In the suburbs of Graz Communists showed signs of increased activity.

WHOLESALE ARRESTS

Wholesale arrests in Carinthia during the night included Court Councilor Maier, director of the State School of Applied Arts, who is charged with operating a radio station in his laboratory for the Nazi cause.

Motor lorries carrying armed Heimwehr men were seen to proceed from beyond Leoben in the direction of Carinthia, indicating the center of difficulties has shifted to that province.

Tyrolese Alpine troops were sent to Upper Carinthia to establish order. At Wolfsberg they found themselves sorely pressed by Nazis, who were in the majority, but after losing their commander, Maj. Smoacle, and suffering numerous injuries, the troops carried the day.

Authorities express confidence the revolt can be crushed before it has a chance to develop into a conflagration compelling the intervention of one or more neighbor nations.

There is no attempt to conceal the fact that Italy is fully authorized to rush her troops across the border if the Nazi uprising becomes too powerful for Austrian Fascism.

The jumpy atmosphere in Vienna was graphically revealed when a brisk and lengthy exchange of shots developed between two government forces during the night. A lorry of fatherland front troops skirmished with equally pro-government police and Heimwehr patrols because of mistaken identity. The entire district was thrown in a panic.

WAR ANNIVERSARY

Today is the twentieth anniversary of Austria's declaration of war on Serbia. It found high army commanders bent over military maps planning the campaign against the Nazis.

Rumors That Italians had actually entered Carinthia are denied vigorously.

Socialist handbills are being circulated saying "Our hour approaches! Be ready for action!" The handbills say the death of Dollfuss "was received by the masses with undisguised joy as the death of a pirate and murderer of liberty."

Heimwehr troops in Carinthia have sent urgent pleas for reinforcements, indicating Nazi triumphs there.

The Nazis are in control of a tunnel connecting Carinthia with Salzburg by rail.

Whole streets in Vienna are closed to traffic, the action following reports that the square before the chancellery was to be stormed by Nazis. Machine guns are stationed at strategic points.

TROOPS FILL STREETS

Troops by the hundreds patrol the streets.

Church bells throughout the city will toll for three hours after the funeral of Dollfuss.

Starhemberg, in a radio address to Austria, said:

"With the exception of a few insignificant places order prevails through Austria and in a few more hours even these places will have unequivocal order and law.

"We have never given occasion for conflict with the reich, but I must declare emphatically that we shall never yield Austria's honor, and we will resist every attempt to limit the liberty and independence of our fatherland."

(In Budapest, Count Sigray, leader of Hungarian legitimists, said restoration of the Hapsburg monarchy was necessary for Hungary and Austria.)

Reports that eight of the 144 Nazis who seized the chancellery and killed Dollfuss had been executed are not confirmable. The Nazis are held prisoners here.

One government leader said he and his associates are ignorant of what is going on in the provinces, but they hoped the appointment of von Papen would bring an end to the civil war. He said:

"Hitler undoubtedly is sincerely desirous to co-operate in restoring peace here. The difficulty naturally is to reach the ears of the fighters in time."

FALSE RUMORS

This point proves to be one of Starhemberg's greatest difficulties. False reports are flooding the provinces and many peasants are fighting with no knowledge of the situation in the capital.

Appeals for aid in the outlying towns find the Heimwehr in a bad position to answer them.

Every able-bodied man is needed here, it is believed, to defend the capital against a possible Nazi attack. Officers profess to disbelieve reports an attack is planned, but every precaution is being taken.

Nazis hope to bring members of the regular army over to their side. For this reason in some sections the troops have been shot in the legs during fighting.

Bridges and railways in several strategic points have been blown to bits by Nizis, hindering the movement of government troops.

Thousands Pay Homage At Dollfuss Funeral

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

VIENNA, July 28.—Thousands of Dollfuss sympathizers, hoping for a last glimpse of the slain statesman before his funeral today, formed a long queue before the City Hall at 6 o'clock this morning, three hours before the time set for public admittance.

While these thousands waited patiently, 7,000 members of the Hejmwehr, mostly Dollfuss comrades from the provinces, filed by the catafalque.

The public was advised the doors to the "Peoples' Hall" would remain open until noon. It was estimated officially that 60,000 paid homage to the dead leader yesterday.

The masses ignored alternating hot sun and sporadic showers to stand in line many hours.

Sandwich men, with white coats and white aprons, served hotdogs, rolls and soft drinks.

PEASANTS PAY HOMAGE

From the early hours today special trains poured peasants, small town citizens and people's deputations from Austria's larger cities into the capital. To encourage the out-of-town homage the government offered half fare on all the railroads for all attending the funeral.

The trains brought countless floral tributes from organizations sending deputations.

The Mayor ordered closure of all business houses at 3 p. m. along the line of march for the funeral cortege from the City Hall to St. Stephens Cathedral and later to Hietzing Cemetery. Others were ordered closed at 4:30 p. m., exception being made only for food stores.

Government offices closed at noon and the newspapers, by direction of the government, informed the populace exactly how the funeral procession would move.

VON PAPEN SET TO TAKE POST IN VIENNA

BERLIN, July 28.—(AP.)—Franz von Papen, newly-appointed by Chancellor Hitler as minister to Austria, remained in Berlin today preparing himself for a departure to Vienna and in contradiction of rumors that he would attend the funeral of Engelbert Dollfuss this afternoon.

A reliable report said the Austrian government had not yet formally accepted his appointment. At von Papen's home, his personal adjutant stated that the formal exchange of diplomatic credentials with the Austrian authorities had not been completed, but he indicated that everything was expected to be settled shortly.

Meanwhile, it was pointed out that it was impossible to decide on a definite time for his departure until these formalities were finished.

The new special envoy was at work at his desk early this morning with his personal staff dashing about, obviously preparing for their chief's quitting Berlin.

Transformed overnight from an unwanted fighting cock of internal politics to smooth the feathered bird of international affairs, von Papen was again outwardly at peace with Chancellor Hitler.

CONFERS WITH HITLER

After conferring with Hitler and other government officials at Bayreuth, the conservative Vice Chancellor flew back to Berlin last night and conferred with his secretaries at his home.

His appointment was accepted enthusiastically both in the press and government circles as a strategic move by Hitler, and was believed to accomplish these aims:

1—Provide a closer bond between the German-speaking neighbors.

2—Demonstrate to the world Hitler's intention to preserve strict neutrality toward Austria.

3—Promote better relations through the Catholic minister between Nazis and Catholics.

4—Remove from the cabinet a non-Nazi, who was a vigorous critic of some Nazi policies.

His new mission, which he accepted at once, rocketed von Papen back into the public view from which he had been slipping since reports that he would be forced out of the government followed the June 30 revolt.

Lifted out of the cabinet, he was, but his supporters regarded his new position as envoy extraordinary as a stronger one. He has been vice chancellor and Saar commissioner.

SUCCEEDS KURT RIETH

Von Papen was named to succeed Kurt Rieth, who was recalled for his unauthorized intervention at Vienna in obtaining a guarantee, which was later revoked, of safe conduct for the slayers of Chancellor Dollfuss.

Who will succeed von Papen in the cabinet was a source of speculation today, with the name of Hermann Goering, Prussian premier, most frequently mentioned.

Another Hitler move, designed to promote good will between Germany and Austria, was seen as it became established that he had gone personally to Munich to prevent a movement of Austrian Nazi refugees back into Austria to join the rebellion.

Still another step that was widely accepted today as an indication that Hitler is leaning toward conservatism in his relations with Austria was his dismissal of Theodore Habicht, Austrian Nazi leader in Germany.

Dollfuss Successor Problem Confused

VIENNA, July 28.—(INS.)—Uncertainty as to who will succeed the slain Engelbert Dollfuss as Chancellor of Austria increased today when the name of Karl Vaugoin, president of the federal railroads, was mentioned for the post in Chancellery circles, where it formerly was held to be a matter between Kurt Schuschnigg, minister of education, and Prince Rudiger von Starhemberg.

Vaugoin is former head of the Christian Socialist party which put Dollfuss into power. He served as defense minister in 15 successive cabinets. He is 61, a former officer in the Austro-Hungarian army and a native of Vienna.

Russians Execute Eight Men as Spies

MOSCOW, July 28.—(AP.)—Kim Zayen, a Korean, and seven Russian railwaymen, found guilty of sabotage on Russian railways, were executed last night, it was announced today.

The men were charged with being spies who had caused train wrecks and sabotage designed to hinder the transportation systems into the Far East.

Stopping to question a man as he made his rounds in front of the nurses' home, Forbes and Halkett streets, Theodore Giles, 53, watchman at Magee Hospital, was slashed on the hand with a knife by the man. The latter escaped after the cutting.

N. S. Club Blaze Causes $50 Loss

Fire in the clubrooms of the Greek Beneficial Association, 2263 Preble avenue, Woods Run, caused $50 damage late yesterday.

Produce Dealers To Appeal Fines

Fined $1 and costs on charges of throwing rubbish in the streets, 12 Penn avenue produce merchants today planned to appeal the fines to the County Court.

The dealers were hailed before Alderman Martin A. Flaherty, Fort Duquesne street, North Side, in connection with the city health department's campaign to clean up streets in the produce district. Six others who failed to appear for hearings last night will be arrested through warrants.

Meanwhile, city authorities announced informations would be filed against two more offenders.

FAZIO BROTHER DISCHARGED AT RUM HEARING

For lack of evidence, James Fazio, 36, of 2206 Woodstock avenue, Swissvale, brother of Philip Fazio, and alleged proprietor of a wholesale beer establishment in Swissvale, was discharged on a charge of violating the state liquor laws last night at a hearing before Alderman Harvey Lowry. Philip Fazio was convicted recently of a Swissvale racket bombing.

Fazio was arrested by state revenue agents following the seizure of a 200-gallon still and a quantity of moonshine whisky Wednesday at 343 Vistaview street, Mifflin Township.

Joseph Marotti and his wife were arrested in the place. Marotti, who denied that Fazio had any connection with the violation, was held for court. His wife was discharged.

Three men were held for court in connection with a raid at the I. B. B. A. Club, Hamilton avenue and Station street. Agent E. J. Kohn, State Revenue Department, said their arrest resulted after a liquor purchase at the establishment on Sunday. He said it was a "one-man" club.

Those held were Charles Logiodice, 35, Carver street, reputed treasurer; Matthew Tedesco, 25, Paulson avenue, reputed steward, and Patsy Caliendo, 23, Frankstown avenue, alleged waiter.

Three women and five men were fined $25 and costs on charges of possessing untaxed liquor and wine after hearings before the alderman.

BELLEVUE SUES IN 'FOREIGN' TAX

Bellevue's first effort to enforce a year-old ordinance requiring foreign firms making retail deliveries in the borough to pay a $100 year license fee today awaited a decision by Justice of the Peace Elmer T. Greiner

The Winters Baking Company, of 3051 Brighton road, North Side, was the first offender arrested for failure to obtain a license. Information was made against the firm by Burgess Chauncey Means following a purchase made from the firm's wagon by Mrs. Means.

Justice Greiner asked counsel for the bakery and the borough solicitor to file briefs and withheld a decision.

Short History of Birdmen Organization; Best Model Plane Club in United States!

By J. JAMES MOORE
Pittsburgh Wing Commander

You young aviation enthusiasts who belong to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph wing of the Junior Birdmen of America, can pride yourself on the fact you belong to the greatest club of its kind in the United States today.

You young model airplane engineers, who number more than 3,100 boys and girls in this section, can also boast that you are part of one of the greatest youth movements ever launched in America.

You young flying fans belong to an organization stretching from coast to coast, with a membership of about 100,000, with wing headquarters located in 17 major cities and with Uncle Sam's ace aviators your backers and boosters.

You pilots of models today and tomorrow's model pilots have a program equal to, if not better than any other youth club anywhere. Look back at our program over the last three months and you will quickly realize that we have been going at Roscoe Turner speed!

REVIEW OF J. B. HISTORY

Herewith is a brief outline history of our J. B. organization:

April 8—Junior Birdmen club announced.

April 15—First daily column begins.

April 18—Harold Gatty, Rear Admiral E. J. King and Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois and others laud organization.

April 24—Motto contest begins with four trips to Washington, D. C., as prizes.

May 7—Flight Squadron plan announced.

May 20—Model building course starts.

June 16—Air pageant held at City-County Airport, with largest crowd ever assembled there attending.

July 8—First annual outdoor Model Plane Derby held at South Park.

July 28—First "Funnybone" Contest winner announced.

Other interesting and fine club doings for which I do not have ready dates was the beginning of the air dictionary lists, the beginning of the complete series of U. S. Army Air Corps insignias and the announcement of the "Writers' Club Unit."

How does that list look for rocket-speed activity? If your friends have not yet joined the J. B. tell them to do so at once or else they are going to miss a lot of good times which will shortly be announced.

OUTING AT WEST VIEW

Tuesday we will hold our first outdoor outing at West View Park. Our aviation program will begin at 3 p. m. with the presentation of prizes to winners of the Model Plane Derby. Come out and meet the champs!

Several well-known fliers will be present to speak to you and Joe Isuro the wing champ will bring his planes out to the park to fly them for your entertainment. I'm keeping the rest of the program secret.

If you are curious, then come out—I'm sure that you won't be disappointed!

Tomorrow I will tell you all about the EAGLE MEMBERSHIP TESTS!

Seek to Reorganize Iron City Sand Firm

The Iron City Sand and Gravel Company filed a petition in Federal Court asking permission to effect a reorganization of the concern under the amended section of the bankruptcy act. Judge R. M. Gibson appointed George Vang, president of the company, and V. L. P. Shriver temporary trustees, and set August 23 for a hearing to determine whether the appointments be made permanent or substitutions made.

The same men are receivers in an equity suit instituted against the company January 4, 1933, by the Union Trust Company of Maryland. The petition seeking authority to reorganize sets forth that the company has large property holdings in Allegheny and Westmoreland counties and floating equipment worth nearly a million dollars. Bond of the trustees was set at $25,000. Creditors and stockholders are to be notified [illegible] pending hearing.

When Lyman Young, famous cartoonist for the Sun-Telegraph and other Hearst Newspapers, went to the World Fair, he took his renowned characters, "Tim Tyler" and "Spud." Later The Sun-Telegraph will print more Century of Progress impressions of other artists from The Sun-Telegraph's comic pages.

FRECKLE-FACE ENTRANTS WELCOME

Hundreds and hundreds of boys and girls will attend the Sun-Telegraph outing at West View Park next Tuesday celebrating National Kiddies' Day.

Quin Hall's Junior Patrol and the Sun-Telegraph wing of the Junior Birdmen of America will contribute to the entertainment of the day following the contest to pick the boy and girl freckle champions of Pittsburgh and vicinity.

MISS FLANAGAN
Brandon st., [illegible] street, Freckled-faced girl entered in the Sun-Telegraph contest.

Now kiddies, it's too late to send in your entry blanks, but if you think you are in the championship class bring your freckles out to West View next Tuesday—all of 'em. This contest will take place at the bandstand at 2 o'clock.

In the meantime there is quite a rush for the strips of free tickets for the rides and attractions at West View. This year only two coupons clipped from the Sun-Telegraph are required for each strip of tickets. You'll find the coupon in another part of today's Sun-Telegraph. There'll be another Monday. Yet there will be no over-crowding. Only enough strips of tickets have been issued to make it comfortable for the kiddies. Fifteen-cent street car passes are also on sale this year. They can be secured at the same neighborhood stations where the strips of tickets are distributed.

Picnic Party Crash Kills Girl, Hurts 3

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., July 28.—A picnic party was brought to a tragic ending yesterday when their automobile smapped an axle and ran wild on the Miller Hill, near Burry's Church, crashing and killing a 13-year-old girl and injuring three others.

Mabel Tagg, 13, was instantly killed. Her sister, Eleanor Tagg, 19, Geneva Hill; Mrs. J. W. McCready, 35, Steffin Hill, and Mrs. William Metcalf, Rochester, driver, were injured.

Court Appeal Taken On Tax Assessment

Claiming its property has been assessed at more than $100,000 over its value, the W. E. Moore Company, owning two buildings in Twenty-eighth street, has appealed to Common Pleas Court from refusal of the Tax Revision Board to reduce the assessment. The present assessment of $290,520 should not be over $176,412, the company claims.

VARIED DAINTIES SOLVING WORRIES FOR HOSTESSES

By PRUDENCE PENNY

What to serve at a club meeting in one's home is, at best, a culinary question sufficient to send any woman hiking for the aspirin box. And while the season is not exactly upon us, it's always a good idea to be prepared.

Falling right into line are today's prize winners, with such dainties as frozen ham salad; crab, all done up in lemon jelly with caviar mayonnaise on lettuce; a delicious fruit salad plate with pistachio cheese, and cakes and puddings, and even punch! A good bet for stowing away against future crises, we'd suggest.

In the meantime, don't forget the 11 prizes—one $5, five $1 and five honorable mention cook books—offered daily for the best recipes sent in to this column. Just address Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. No recipes are returned.

Following are today's eleven:

Five Dollar Prize Winner

Two cups minced ham.
Ten ripe olives (minced).
Two cups whipped cream.

Soften gelatine in cold water for five minutes. Dissolve in boiling water. Add mayonnaise dressing, horseradish, ham and olives. Fold in whipped cream. Pour into mold and cover tightly. Pack in four parts ice and one part salt and freeze three hours. Serve on crisp lettuce garnished with mayonnaise and ripe olives.

Five $1 Prize Winners

MRS. W. W. AHLBORN,

Salt and pepper to taste.

Cut oxtails into four-inch pieces. Put three generous tablespoons of butter in heavy frying pan. When butter is hot and starting to brown, add the onion, half carrot, celery and turnip. Fry to a nice brown and add the two tablespoons flour. Stir well. Add the oxtails and season with salt and pepper. Add one and one-half cups cold water, cover, and simmer for three hours. Serve very hot. May be baked in oven or on top of stove. If water simmers down too much, baste from a cup of hot water, in which a tablespoon of butter has been melted.

Garnish with a few cherries and a tablespoonful of mayonnaise mixed with cream.

When ready to serve, unmold on lettuce and garnish with caviar mayonnaise.

CAVIAR MAYONNAISE

Beat into a cupful of plain mayonnaise two tablespoons heavy cream. Add two or three dashes paprika, one tablespoon lemon juice and two tablespoons caviar. Mix.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

The Private Papers of a Reporter

Melvin H. Purvis, of the Department of Justice at Chicago, was a dejected fellow the day last May I met him there in his offices in the Bankers Bldg. . . . The gazettes that morning had scolded him and his men with editorials—for "The Little Bohemia" incident in the Wisconsin woodlands . . . The critics of Mr. Purvis and his investigators deplored the unnecessary killings in that vicinity—and the escape of the late J. Herbert Dillinger . . . "We got a bad break," explained Mr. Purvis, "nobody would have been hurt if that dog hadn't barked" . . . He fingered a letter opener on his desk, as he looked at it and swapped chatter . . . I tried to comfort him by reminding him that he had to take the raps for his men, for he was their leader . . . And that when he or any of his agents finally nailed Johnn he would be smothered in the glory . . . He looked as though he hadn't slept much—he was weary-orbed and pasty of complexion . . . He had been up most of the previous night—chasing false clues, he said.

Come to think of it, after it was suggested that some national advertiser offer a $5,000 reward for Dillinger (dead or alive) in their advertising—an enterprising press agent for Carl Laemmle's newsreel did so . . . And by making the offer—got his firm's name on the front pages . . . It was a bit of trigger-minded thinking on the newsreel company's part, even if it was a grandstand play . . . The press agent, I still suspect, got the idea from the column, and clicked with it—for his offer came 48 hours later . . . It was a juicy and profitable bunch of free advertising . . . And so long as they received more than $5,000 worth of advertising, it seems to me that Mr. Laemmle's company should come forward now with the $5,000 and turn it over to the Department of Justice, with instructions to give it to the gal in red or her accomplices . . . I mean this—I want to see that five Gs paid to someone—considering that the offer was believed by the newspapers that were generous with their space.

Clark Gable was punished by a Santa Barbara newspaper the other morning . . . Clark, it appears, was dining in a hotel when a reporter sent over a note urging an interview . . . The actor made a "Humpfh—a reporter" noise, which was heard by the scribe . . . Gable also refused the interview, and the reporter got even, by golly . . . He put Gable on the front page, with a teasing tale of remembering old days when Gable would have been glad to get publicity . . . Alongside the story was space for a one column photograph of the actor, but no likeness was used . . . Instead it said: "This space reserved for picture of Clark Gable" . . . Considering that all moviegoers know what Gable looks like—it was better than a picture of him . . . Better, I thought, was the reporter's closing comment to his story . . . He wrote: "Nevertheless, next to Mickey Mouse and the Three Little Pigs, Gable is still one of my favorite stars" . . . Sticks and stones, etc.

I got a titter out of this one . . . The wild reports last week included one about a secret wedding between Jackie Coogan, now 20, and Toby Wing . . . It is said to be a fact, however, that Jackie, who made two million dollars—now tied up in a trust fund—had asked his mother for permission to marry Miss Wing . . . Mother is supposed to have replied: "Before you think of marriage—why don't you see if you can make a living first?" . . . There is a former headliner in Hollywood, who is in want . . . I visited her the other day in her walk-up apartment—so different from the costly suites she once could afford . . . None of the men, now in power in Hollywood, whom she helped make comfortable with huge salary commissions in her hey-day—will answer her phone calls . . . She won't accept money from friends or from columnists . . . She wants a job—not stardom or big parts—just a job . . . To keep alive, she told me . . . I got her one the next morning—at $7.50 a day—as an extra in a flicker . . . She was so happy at the news . . . But she is so capable of doing bigger parts! . . . She might have been given a chance in "4 Walls"—but they told her she wasn't the type, which she is! . . . The role was for a Jewish mother . . . So what do you think happened? . . . The role was given to May Robson . . . Who is as Irish as Polly Moran!

The Marie Dressler story about her first mink coat the other day brought this interesting note from Dr. Thomas Cutty, once one of the show folks . . . He says that in the early 1920's Marie met May Irwin in Chicago on a cold winter's day . . . May had no coat . . . Marie took off hers and gave it to May . . . "I always like to hear stories of the big hearts in the show biz," he adds . . . Me, too . . . Walter Wanger, whose name is so similar to ours, that invariably people introduced to him—either orchid or scallion him—just phonned . . . "Have you been up to Santa Barbara to visit Dressler?" he asked . . . I told him I hadn't, that I didn't think anyone could see her . . . He said that he couldn't, either, no one got in—but that he called and left his card . . . Before leaving the card the man there asked his name. "Walter Wanger," Walter said . . . "Oh, Mr. Winchell," the man said, "I've been waiting for you to come. The very last words Miss Dressler uttered before she went into a coma were: 'I wish I could see Walter Winchell again!' If she recovers—won't you please come to see her?" . . . Wanger then told the man he wasn't the columnist, etc. . . . Wonder what it was Marie wanted to say? . . . She liked to kid me, and always did . . . Last year, as the introducer said: "This is Walter Winchell," Marie put me across her lap and spanking me, said: "There, there, there—you naughty boy!" . . . It got a big laugh . . . But I had to go through it five times for the still cameramen!

Hot From Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, July 28.—Hello! There are various ways of "going Hollywood," an expression of the movie village which might mean that a chap becomes fatheaded, swell-chested, a devout believer of his press notices, or in another sense—kiddingly—he might do strange and sometimes goofy things to attract attention and the like.

Anyway, Irvin Cobb, robust novelist and now a movie actor (his wife said the "Ham" in him had to come out sometime,) has succumbed to all the tricks of the city of celluloid—he rented Greta Garbo's former beach home and is proudly sleeping in the silent Swede's bed. In fact, he's had himself photographed in it.

Will Rogers, slated to do Cobb's "Judge Priest" story, wired Irvin to change his name to Cobbo! And Irvin, just to be different, is admitting—especially to his New York pals—that he has definitely "gone Hollywood".

Another boost for California super-service—Charlotte Granville, the Broadway actress, was so impressed with the courtesy of gasoline station employes, she said:

"Any day I expect one of them to lean in and powder my nose!"

* * *

Wanderings around Hollywood . . . Rowland V. Lee has gone to New York where he will direct the first of the Harold B. Franklin-Arch Selwyn productions. George M. Cohan, who doesn't like Hollywood, will be the star . . . Madge Kennedy, whose last movie was in 1926, is back in town—and would listen to a cinema offer, and she looks swell, incidentally . . . Ernst Lubitsch really put on a super-special soiree—one that had most of the high-powered party tossers agog and in awe over the lavishness and finesse in which it was tendered. Irving Thalberg actually played patty-cake with another producer! Sam Goldwyn didn't make one funny remark, although an army of listeners were anxiously waiting. Three people mistook Fay Wray for Gloria Swanson, but Herbert Marshall wasn't one of them.

Some odds and ends . . . Erin O'Brien-Moore (remember her as the lead on the stage in "Street Scene?") finally landed something worth while at RKO—a lead in "Dangerous Corner"...Sylvia Sidney's back in town and will personally read the script of "Limehouse Nights" before she consents to do the role opposite George Raft. She may (and it's not a bad guess) turn it down flat!

Runyon Tale Quaintly Tender

By KARL KRUG

Submerging its gangster atmosphere and metropolitan veneer of underworld sophistication beneath a romance almost as beautifully tender as that told in the immortal "Smilin' Through," Damon Runyon's "Midnight Alibi" came to the Stanley yesterday to reveal Richard Barthelmess in the most effective characterization the screen has given him in a long time.

An elusive, yet vivid, spirit of whimsical sentiment was originally set down by Mr. Runyon in a magazine story called "The Old Doll's House," and to the credit of First National be it related that the company has preserved the letter of the narrative more than faithfully in the film transcription called "Midnight Alibi".

There are moonlight and garden walls, chattering machine guns and big shots, a romance in the New York of 1888 and 1934, an old-fashioned parlor and flashy apartments and night clubs in "Midnight Alibi". Only an author of the Runyon technique could weave them together to bring out that where love really exists, no bar, no matter how strong, should be countenanced that thwarts it.

LAVENDER, AND OLD LACE

Barthelmess plays Lance MacGowan, a former big-time racketeer and gambler, who returns from Europe to find the old order changed due to the death of prohibition. Then he falls in love with the kid sister of Angie the Ox. Now Angie and Lance are "professional" enemies, and it is this enmity that leads, no matter how paradoxical it sounds, to the lavender and old lace beauty of "Midnight Alibi."

Barthelmess is marked for "the spot," but Angie's sharpshooters miss, and their intended victim leaps over the garden wall of a New York mansion, wherein dwells "the old doll," a spinster in recluse almost half a century. It is Helen Lowell, Broadway veteran, who plays Abigail Ardsley, the spinster, whose romance of many years before was wrecked by a pistol in the hands of her irate father. There is a flashback with Barthelmess playing the role of Abigail's lover and Helen Chandler, as demure as a vision out of the family album, filling the part of the youthful society girl.

Alan Crosland, the director, has captured all the quaint charm of both the modern scenes between Lance and the elderly Abigail and the flashback sequences. As the story progresses, the old doll and the young gambler become firm friends and she tells him to let nothing stand in the way of his love for Joan, a role nicely depicted by Ann Dvorak. The romance is almost on the rocks because of the enmity of Angie the Ox for Lance, and Abigail decides to help the young man who has so suddenly entered her life.

Then, Angie the Ox is slain and Barthelmess is charged with the murder. Although he is present when the killing took place, he had no hand in it, but circumstantial evidence is so strong against him that he is headed for the chair. The trial is a farce, Lance is going to the big house for life or the hot seat and then he is saved by a miracle.

"OLD DOLL" SAVES HIM

Into that courtroom comes a breath of the romance of yesterday. In her bonnet, laces and quaint cape, and flanked by her retinue of venerable servitors, arrives Abigail Ardsley, who, as an old social acquaintance of the judge, call His Honor by his first name, and then swears that Lance MacGowan was visiting her at midnight on March 10, the time set as the demise of Angie the Ox.

While "Midnight Alibi is played in a vein somewhat more subdued than most of the Runyon pictures, for me it owns as much, or more, "body" than any of its predecessors. It has far more of Mr. Runyon's direct dialogue than any film yet made from one of his colorful tales, and I can especially recommend those scenes where the argot of the modern underworld as it comes from the lips of Lance MacGowan is intermingled with that of the aged and gentle Abigail.

Not that Abigail gives Miss Lowell the same sort of spectacular role that "Lady For a Day" tossed in the lap of May Robson. It doesn't. But, then, "Midnight Alibi" isn't that kind of a story. It's a tender and delightful blend of the fragrant eighties with the sensational happenings that hit the first pages of today's newspapers.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, July 28.—Purely personal piffle: Boyville's saddest hour—when cows are driven home at dusk. Harold Ross eats up a cigaret in quick lightning-like puffs. Joe Cook's closest friend is Raymond Schindler, private detective. On two occasions I've grappled with clothes racks in dark halls.

Leo Newman rids his ticket agency of loafers by sprinkling ammonia on the floor. Bernard Baruch, for one, came out of Wall Street without stains. Hal Phyfe's studio comes nearest to the informality of a Left Bank salon. The only stranger to look totally unlike my mental picture was Hal Roach.

What became of the fellows who used to say, "Hey, Cul!" When Vernon Castle entered public dining rooms he'd throw his polo coat on the hall floor and his police dog would stretch on the hall floor and his police dog would stretch on it. I saw no mention that Hal Skelly was once a choir boy. Every ham is doubtful Will Rogers is an actor.

I used to freeze all the neighbors' ice cream just to lick the dashers. Flying into a rage, I long for DeWolf Hopper's voice. Mine squeaks. Norma Shearer has the sprucest, slicked-uppiness of screen stars. Simile: As dry as Helen Jacob's smile. I love to hear Phyllis Seeman laugh.

* * *

When Ziegfeld, who never drank, fagged with office routine he'd spray the room with expensive perfume. An evening to record: Eddie Peabody is dropping over soon with his banjo to play all the tunes I suggest. Amon Carter is America's most earnest civic booster. Why do all the wonder kiddies of the films fizzle out in maturity? When I catch a big column blunder, my throat goes ash dry. If it hadn't been for Benedict Arnold it would be a grand first name.

* * *

I drove up to the entrance of a nudist colony in Germany with Karl Pitchen for a visit. And then turned and skedaddled like everything. One of my most interesting correspondents is a Catholic sister in St. Paul. "Legs" Diamond and Arnold Rothstein were the only underworld figures I ever knew on sight. About six different men have been pointed out as Owney Madden. Dandy book: 'Holy Deadlock," by A. P. Herbert.

Every time I mention Chaplin, a dozen regulars inquire why he does not take out citizenship papers. I like to answer the back door bell, watch Herbert Swope dash into a room and hear Irvin Cobb accent the "po" in policeman. My wife can spot a phoney, man or woman, at a glance. She never misses. Harry Beaumont does the dandiest imitation of George Primrose's soft shoe dance. Roy W. Howard once wrote a photo caption "Petite Little Dancer," but he got along all right.

* * *

When I get out on a limb writing a column I take a pad and pencil to an arm chair across the room and finish it whim-wham. Emily Vanderbilt Whitfield can write her first name with two quick strokes of the pen so nobody can read it. Gene Crawley's letters to me usually bear the return address, "Adele de Vere, The Red Garter Girls, On Tour." Nice scandal for the help. Never knew a happily retired business or professional man. There are exactly 17 versions of the Astor-Gillespie row and it would not interest me if all were correct. Nothing describes a four-flushing gesture like the Chinese phrase, "making face."

Richard Mansfield's intonations and postures would be classed as cheap theatricals today. Two syndicate associates are honored the same week—Michigan University makes V. V. McNitt a Master of Arts and Kentucky gives Albert Payson Terhune a colonelcy. I continue a leading member of the Madison Avenue Pants Pressing Club. I can't stop pronouncing the name of the tight wire expert, Con Colleano.

Stories about Jimmy Walker's nostalgia for his dear old New York are assinine. I can never get rid of bores. G. K. Chesterton says bores always attract bores. My enthusiasm for Leslie Howard on the screen has gone wishy-washy. Although once my favorite performer. Just another of the fickle public. But I'm faithful to Shirley Temple in my fashion. Cincinnati had more glamour for me than any American city. John Horgan couldn't get an airplane from Davton, O., of all places, for New York recently.

* * *

Blood red finger nails give me the ork-orks. I like to dine and sleep on yachts only when they're anchored, can't wade through an Edgar Wallace mystery and never lunched at the Algonquin. That waltz tune they play for ice skating acts always makes me want to glide. The Nijinsky in me!

Big Revolt On Screen

Turbulent conditions in Austria which culminated in the assassination of Chancellor Dollfuss by the Nazis, are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News with the Globe Trotter describing the latest developments. There are sensational scenes of conflict between the soldiers and radicals and of the worst uprising of all when hundreds of Socialists are killed and wounded.

Hearst Metrotone News cameramen make a survey of the drought belt in the Midwest, which shows the appalling conditions existing. Once green pastures are now sun-blistered wastes. In the Kansas City stockyards some of the million head of cattle bought by the government to relieve the distress are shown arriving.

More than 25,000 thousand persons see the thrilling outboard races for the Hearst gold trophy at Long Beach, Cal.

Hundreds of thousands of devout Mohammedans are shown gathered at Delphi, India, to observe the month of prayer in the famous mosque.

The baseball races in the National and American Leagues have their parallel in Japan where college teams clash before an enormous crowd.

A tremendous quantity of drugs, representing part of a year's seizure by the Narcotic Bureau, is burned in Washington.

In Prague 15,000 workers unite in a mass demonstration drill as a climax to the Sokol festival.

In Memphis, Tenn., daredevil motorcycle climbers tackle a hill that seems to be almost straight up. Only one reaches the top.

Gov. Pinchot pins a medal on Adjt. Gen. Davis, of the National Guard, for long and conspicuous service, at Indiantown Gap, Pa.

Note—Owing to the necessity upon theater managers to arrange programs in their schedules, some subjects of Hearst Metrotone News may not be shown in your theater.

Colman Film In Penn

By MICHAEL SHAW

"Bulldog Drummond" was the first completely successful talking picture, the first to combine the action and movement of the old silents with the new thrill of sound. Adventurous Capt. Drum Drummond was handsomely acted by Ronald Colman, and the whole affair lingers pleasantly in the mind of many a filmgoer.

Now Mr. Colman has returned to the screen after a two-year vacation, and his favorite hero comes with him, after an absence considerably longer. "Bulldog Drummond Strikes Back," as the sequel is called, opened yesterday in the Penn, and you are almost sure to like it.

A fast moving, humorous melodrama, it is extremely well done. All sorts of mysterious things are constantly happening; the debonair Drummond and his comic assistant keep us alternately excited and amused. We encounter, furthermore, the damsel in distress, the sinister oriental prince and the unimaginative Scotland Yard official—figures necessary to such a film. And best of all, a London fog enshrouds the entire action; we wouldn't give a cent for a mystery story that didn't start, at least, in a London fog.

The plot idea came apparently from that legend which dear old Alexander Woollcott loves so well, and tells so often. You know—the one about the girl visiting Paris, who goes for a doctor for her sick aunt and, on returning to their hotel, can find no trace of aunt or belongings; indeed, even the room they occupied seems to have vanished.

Well, the movie makers took this situation, multiplied it by five (personally, we think four would have been enough), tossed in the oriental and his cohorts and shifted everything across the channel.

They also provided a dramatic climax and a logical solution. They then set out to give their story a clever, tasteful production, and succeeded.

Mr. Colman exerts all his old vigor and charm in a role that keeps him before the camera almost without interruption. Gay, resourceful, courageous and gallant is Drummond, and Mr. Colman fits the requirements perfectly.

Charles Butterworth, the deadpan who plays Algy, Drummond's often unwilling companion in adventure, has one of his best parts, and great roars of laughter greet his dry sallies.

Pretty Loretta Young is Mr. Colman's love interest, and Una Merkel is Mr. Butterworth's bride. Warner Oland plays his usual bland villain and C. Aubrey Smith represents the crusty, harassed police official.

All in all, it's a grand cast in a rollicking mystery yarn well worth anyone's time.

A particularly uproarious comedy of the Patsy Kelly-Thelma Todd series rates mention, too.

Lowell Jungle Film Done

The Van Beuren Corporation makers of films such as Frank Buck's "Bring 'Em Back Alive" and "Wild Cargo," announces the completion of "Joan Lowell—Adventure Girl," for RKO release, a true-to-life record of the thrilling adventures encountered by Miss Lowell and her small adventure-seeking party which set sail from New York in a 48-foot schooner for the jungles of Central America with cameras and movie-making paraphernalia. The locale is set principally in the Mayan ruins of Guatemala where many ancient temples were photographed for the first time by a motion picture camera. No sets of props of any kind were used, the entire production being made with natural background on location.

Judas Role Helped by Halter

By GEORGE SEIBEL

That peerless paladin of the drama, Elmer Kenyon, has been wandering about Europe, and sends me a story about an Italian amateur that should be an incentive to our own devotees of stage realism. It appears that at Bordevolo, near Milan, an annual Passion Play is staged by local workers. Domenico Otella, a butcher when he is not acting, played Judas.

Mr. Seibel

His great bit was made in the hanging scene, when he suspended himself for five full minutes. Ha decided that he did not decorate the tree long enough, so he went out into the woods to practice.

Some people who were unaware of his artistic purpose, notified the police that a madman was trying to commit suicide, so Otella Judas was arrested.

His relatives and the director of the Passion Play came to the rescue and explained matters to the police.

After everybody had had a good laugh, Signor Otella was given permission to use any trees in the Valley of Aosta that he considered necessary to his rehearsal.

MORE NEGRO DRAMA

Dr. Ralph Mark Gilbert, who has directed a number of Negro dramatic performances in Pittsburgh, is coming back next Tuesday to put on his own play, "The Pardon," in the Herron Hill Junior High School, sponsored by the Monumental Baptist Church.

The play is based upon prison life, being the story of a Negro lad who is sent to prison by mistake. His religious regeneration forms the climax of the play. There is a cast of 56.

Besides the actors there will be a chorus singing Negro music, and this chorus will be 75 strong, directed by John Blakey.

All the talent will be drawn from local amateur circles, which is not difficult, since there is a Negro Drama League consisting of at least four groups of players.

BENSON COMES BACK

So great is the urge to "play-act" that it is not surprising to hear that Sir Frank Benson, the famous English Shakespearean actor, has come from his retirement with the avowed purpose of training young players. He is confident there is a big Shakespearean revival coming, and he feels the new generation should be trained in the great traditions of the past.

Benson, who is 78 years old, seems to have a suspicion that modern plays are too clever and that cleverness palls upon the audience. He wants to bring a generation of young actors back to the traditions of Irving, Ellen Terry and the Kembles.

If he can bring them half-way back, that will be enough.

Wedding and engagement news this week-end is of such interest that it supplants the usual summer supremacy of travel notes in social realms.

A surprise to many of her friends will be the wedding today of Louise McKee, daughter of the late William McKees, of Tennyson avenue, and Robert Harrison Kaufman, son of the Rev. and Mrs. George W. Kaufman.

MISS ELINORE HOELZEL AND HER DALMATION

No announcement had been made of the wedding date.

The marriage will take place this afternoon at 5:30 o'clock in the McKee home, with the bridegroom's father officiating. Only relatives and a few close friends will attend the ceremony.

Traditional white satin is the bride's choice for her wedding gown. Her veil of tulle will cascade from a cap of tulle and Duchesse lace, and her flowers will be white orchids, gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Alberta Kaufman, sister of the bridegroom, and Anna Day McCall will be the bride's only attendants.

Alberta will wear a pink crepe gown, and Anna a blue one, made with capes of the same material. Insets of net will distinguish the skirts of the dresses. Both attendants will carry arm bouquets of garden flowers.

Thomas C. Pears III will be best man.

After an eastern motor trip they will be at home in Tennyson avenue.

The bride went to Winchester School here and to Miss Dow's School; the bridegroom is a graduate of Princeton.

Socially important, though small, will be the wedding this evening at 7:30 o'clock of Miss Mary Agate Brown and George L. Collord.

Miss Brown is a daughter of Mrs. Charles W. Brown, of Sewickley. The ceremony, to be attended by only members of the families, will take place in the Brown home.

The Rev. Dr. Owen Davies Odell, pastor of the Sewickley Presbyterian Church, will be the officiant.

From New York comes an engagement announcement—that of Mary Elizabeth Powell, daughter of the Earle J. Powells, of Cynwyd, Pa., to William Anderson, Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. William Anderson, of Eastern avenue, Aspinwall.

Mary Elizabeth is a graduate of Smith College, class of 1933. Mr. Anderson is an alumnus of Cornell University and Harvard Law School.

Mellon Entry Wins Flower Show Prize

A flower show can always be depended on to attract all gardeners, even recluses.

The twenty-seventh annual flower show at fashionable Southampton, L. I., which opened Thursday under the auspices of the Southampton Garden Club and the Southampton Horticultural Society, attracted colonists from resorts from miles around.

Among the prize-winning owners was Mrs. Edward Purcell Mellon, of New York. Mr. Mellon is a son of the late Thomas Alexander Mellon, of Pittsburgh, and a cousin of all the Pittsburgh Mellon family. Mrs. Mellon's sweet peas won a first prize.

Much interest was shown in the shadow-box competition. Electrically-lighted boxes of uniform sizes were used and were decorated by a group of the summer colony at Southampton to represent still-life pictures.

Mrs. E. P. Cook Entertains Club

The Current Event Club, of Edgewood, was entertained on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Edward P. Cook, of West Swissvale avenue. Mrs. Cook sang two songs, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Basil Auburn.

Lewis Reunion In Phillips Park

The eighth annual reunion of the Lewis family will be held in Phillips park at 2 o'clock today. There will be a picnic and games.

Mrs. Mesta Summering At Newport

Few Pittsburgh fashionables go to Newport, R. I. Most of them prefer smaller, more "country" resorts as a change from a winter in an industrial city.

Former Pittsburgher Mrs. George Mesta is an exception. She has become a regular Newporter in the summer time. She was among those entertaining at picnics Thursday at Bailey's Beach.

Early in the week on this page there was an item about Helen and Sherley Tunnell, daughters of the E. Paul Tunnells, and Margaretta Oliver, daughter of the Augustus K. Olivers, all post-debs, motoring to Newport to be the guests there of the Tunnell girls' aunt, Mrs. Peyton J. Van Rensselaer, at her Newport summer home.

This afternoon Mrs. Van Rensselaer is giving an informal tea in her home for her trio of guests. Newport's younger set will be invited.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS :-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-: By MARION BRUNOT

Difference of 8 Years In Ages Not Great

Her parents object because he is eight years her senior. They say he'll be an old man while she is still in her prime. They want her to take up with the fellows her own age . . . And so she worries, for she likes this man . . . they are such friends and he has managed to pal about with the younger circle in order to please her.

Dear Miss Brunot:

For the past year and a half I have been going with a man eight years my senior. I am 20. He is 28. We have enjoyed each other's company, and his friendship has meant a great deal to me.

Miss Brunot

Although he has a large circle of friends his own age, and he could be with them whenever he desired, he makes friends among my younger crowd and also joins in all my pastimes. We have both been active in young people's work and enjoy it a lot.

PARENTS OBJECT

My parents are my stumbling block. They feel he is too old for me, that in a few years, were our intentions to become serious, I should be marrying an old man. As far as character is concerned, I do not feel they have any objections, but I do seem to think they have decided he and I are not suited for each other.

It is quite pointless to discontinue this friendship, and only on this reason. But it, nevertheless, worries me. Tell me what to do. Perhaps with your circle of friends and your experience you can advise me.

BROWN-EYED SUSAN.

Your parents are taking the question of age too seriously. Some people are prone to do this. Eight years is not enough of a difference to make you at any time too young for this man . . . Just turn the cycle of everyone's years in your own mind, and compare . . . When you are 40, he will be 48, and so on . . . Personally, it seems to me a few years the senior where the man is concerned, is a good thing . . . It causes the woman to look up to him more than she otherwise might do.

The fact that you and your friend have such mutual companionship and enjoy the same sort of helpful work, puts a good color on the situation . . . Do not give him up, Brown-Eyed Susan . . . He sounds to me like a genuine FIND . . . And, after all, if your parents really see you are in DEAD earnest, they'll lift their objections. Chances are, they are only deeply engrossed in your best interests . . .

QUITS SPEAKING

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am a girl of 21. I have gotten acquainted with a fellow who passes our place in a truck. One day he stopped and asked to take me to a dance, and in that way we have kept steady company for three months.

At one dance he took a silk handkerchief of mine and I allowed him to have it. All during Lent he kept it, as my religion does not permit me to go to social functions during that period. And when I saw him again he didn't even speak. Shall I write and ask for my handkerchief, or should I ask him when I see him on the street? Lately he has acted as if he wanted to talk to me. What shall I do?

PUZZLED BOCYTS.

This fellow may have thought you were trying to shake him during Lent. For he many not realize how sacred this time is to you. By all means speak to him and be friendly. Do not mention the handkerchief until your friendship is on a sure footing once more.

BOY WORRIES HER

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am a girl of 18 and am deeply in love with a young man of 21. He says he also is in love with me. The mushball team in our town held a dance and this boy does not live in the same town I do, but a mile out.

I could not attend this dance on account of one of my relations being buried that day. And as I passed the dance on my way home I saw him with another girl. I know he brought that girl to the dance as I saw them getting from his car. About two weeks before this dance, our team held a two-day picnic, I did not see him the first night but I saw a few of his friends. I was with my girl friend. The next night as I was dancing, I saw him standing along the side. When I got through, I went up to him, and he seemed to be different than he had been.

Do you think his friends told him I was having a good time the first night? I naturally did dance with other fellows. And do you think he brought this other girl to the second dance to let me see he could?

He has written me several letters, and has several of mine. Should I ask him for these letters? I think it would make him angry, were I to do so.

I don't want to lose him, Miss Brunot.

Worried Mae.

You say in one breath, you don't want to lose this fellow, Worried Mae . . . And in the next breath, you suggest asking him for your letters, so that you may anger him . . . That isn't very sensible, is it? Yet love isn't always wise . . . It is odd, how closely we associate indignation and affection . . . Revenge and love.

NOT 'SHOWING' YOU

I do not think this fellow was trying to SHOW you what he could do when he took the other girl to the dance . . . He must have known your relative was dead, and he did not count on your seeing him. That was it . . . You and he are not engaged, and either one has a right to go with whomsoever you will . . . Be more tolerant, pleasant and companionable, and I feel all will come out just as you would have it.

The young man evidently cares for you . . . His friends may have guyed him about you, and the two-day dance . . . But I scarcely think they meant to be malicious . . . He may have been embarrassed instead of angry. Some young fellows are not very ready to accept the gaff of their companions . . . They even go so far, sometimes, as to allow the poor girl to be the goat . . . It's just their way, sister. And I would not allow it to worry me . . . Do not ask for the letters.

LINEN JUMPERS A MID-SEASON TONIC

By PRUNELLA WOOD

Cool printed linen in blue and white makes this suspender frock with its plain blue jacket and white handerkerchief linen blouse, piped with blue.

Center, the perennially popular navy and white print, in a tie silk. The wide collar with its pleated edge and big bow is a new note.

Above, a novel jumper suit in white linen, worn with a high necked blouse of red and white tie silk.

THE JUMPER is being investigated again as a cool, practical costume for mature women. A hint of the Tyrol is to be seen in some; other's are the jean bit Little Women in their lines. Such frocks are generally very flattering to tall women, both the plump sisters and those who have put on a bit of weight. There is necessarily something square and geometric in their lines which reduces curves and breaks up great lengths satisfactorily.

Newest wrinkle in these two-piece frocks is the use of silk with linen or cotton—the first for a blouse, the second for the main garment. It takes them out of the adolescent class and makes them into the sort of frock which goes to town well or which looks smart at the country club gathering.

* * *

A SUMMER revival of tie silks, very much like old fashioned foulard, is also underweigh. Those which have the white background for printed wiggles in soft blue, bright green and black or Gora yellow are particularly smart, and the fact that one designer has brought out awfully swank cabana pajamas and coat in them does not mean that they will not make swell spectator sports frocks, or blouses for these jumper-minded models.

* * *

AS BLOUSES to wear with the ubiquitous jacket and skirt of stiff men's wear linen, tie silks cannot be beat. Designers take few liberties with this fabric, being content to keep it for tailored clothes, where it belongs. A tip which will transform an off-the-pile blouse of tie silk into something exclusive, is substituting fancy clips or buttons for shirt buttons.

Sun-Telegraph 15c Pattern

Of course, it is a perfect frock for many sorts of fabrics, but we pick on pique because we like it, and because the new ones in the shops are divine. Take, for instance, a plain beige with brown buttons, or white with bright green buttons, or a stripe, or, for that matter, a fine plaid! The smart shoulders would set exactly right and the skirt would hang beautifully, and it would wear and wear and wear, and make a good friend of the laundress.

Pattern 1364 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42. Size 16 takes 3 yards 36-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Fashion Flashes

Give a thought to the tailored suit of white linen if you are bound for a cruise or for any other vacation. A charming and useful suit is in heavy white linen with low, double-breasted closing bellows pockets and a red, white and blue plaid blouse and matching revers.

While the sun is shining tailors are working on coats for autumn. An advance model is of yellow and brown flecked tweed, and has a high standing collar of beaver which can be let down to form a cape effect. There is a broad belt of brown leather.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

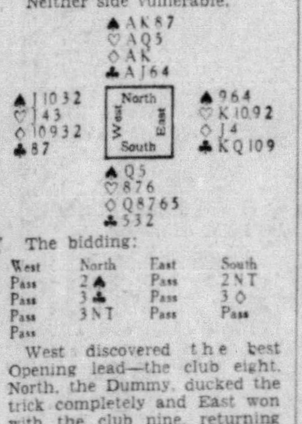
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Successful Bluff

Quite frequently by making use of the advantage he has in having his hand concealed, the Declarer can steal tricks from the opponent where they do not legitimately exist. A psychologically alert Declarer can very frequently play his cards in such a manner that he will convoy an entirely wrong impression and thereby make them fall into his trap. What the Declarer actually does is to exploit the enemy's fear, and a very fine example of this is seen in the hand below.

West, Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.



The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	2 ♠	Pass	2 N T
Pass	3 ♣	Pass	3 ◇
Pass	3 N T	Pass	Pass
Pass

West discovered the best Opening lead—the club eight. North, the Dummy, ducked the trick completely and East won with the club nine, returning the club King. This trick was won by Dummy's Ace and now the Ace and King of diamonds were cashed. South, who was a player of great ability and keen judgment, now played the heart Queen from Dummy.

East's reaction to this play was exactly what South had hoped it would be. East feared that South held the heart Jack and a set up diamond suit and he therefore decided to allow the Queen to win the trick and thus keep the theoretical heart Jack from being an entry to South's hand. South, of course, promptly made use of the spade Queen, which he had hitherto concealed as an entry to his hand. He cashed the Queen of diamonds and this card provided his ninth trick.

Such a "make believe" play as this would fail if East happened to belong to that small group of Bridge players who are dominated by the fear of losing an Ace or any high card. In this particular instance East really had no way of telling whether or not South could get to his own hand. He can't be severely criticized for the hold-up, as the type of play which South made is a most unusual one.

The heart trick which the Declarer so cleverly stole was his ninth trick and enabled South to fulfill an otherwise very difficult contract. It is possible that South might have made his contract by more normal means—that is, eventually end-playing East or West, but this would have been most difficult.

Household Hints

Tarnished silver can be cleaned quickly by rubbing with a cloth sprinkled with bicarbonate of soda.

To clean dark paint wash with a leather wrung out of water to which a little vinegar has been added.

Chamois leather gloves will not lose their color when washed if water in which orange rind has soaked over night is used.

Raffia bound round the lid handles of aluminium saucepans will save many burns when lids have to be removed in the course of cooking.

Ink stains may be removed from linen by putting melted tallow on the mark and then washing the article. The ink and the grease will come out together.

Madge Determined to Join Expedition

As my father told Lillian that I might go with him, "against his better judgment," on the expedition to bring back the bound and gagged Chinese whom we had left in the woods, he turned away abruptly, walked to the car of the Chinese, in which we had brought Hugh back to the farm house, and bent over its hood as if he were appraising it.

But I knew that the movement was only subterfuge, and I gripped Lillian's arm in sudden panic.

"He really disapproves of my going with him on this expedition," I whispered. "Perhaps I would—"

"Of course he does, the archaic darling," Lillian murmured back. "But that isn't going to make any difference to you. If I'd had any buttons to shed in Peggotty fashion, I would have burst them all in the tremendous effort I made to win him over to the idea of your going back into those woods. And now that I've passed the tape, you're not going to upset any records, not unless you trample my dead body in the effort. So go over and get into the Veritzen limousine—Otto is standing at attention already—and strut your stuff without fear or trembling. I'll attend to everything here. Good hunting!"

READY TO START

She threw us her right hand in the little comradely gesture which has heartened me so many times in our long association, and I walked over to the big car beside which Otto was standing. He helped me in, and I was no sooner seated than my father appeared at the door with Hank beside him.

"We'll start now, Otto," he said. "Bill, Ronald and Bob will follow us closely in the lighter car. It seems to be in good condition."

"I suppose if I'm to tell Otto where he is to go, I'd better sit up front with him," Hank said.

The boy put a foot on the running board, and then, pausing, turned a troubled face to me. Hank is our "brash one" in Mrs. Ticer's phraseology, but I knew that there was some message or information he wished to give us before we started.

"Please wait a second!" I said under my breath to my father, putting my hand on his as I spoke. He clasped it tenderly, and listened without comment as I spoke to my husband's young nephew.

"What is it Hank?" I asked, smiling at him, and the boy's face brightened.

"Why, I wondered if when we get down there, at the entrance to that little road into the place where we left the Chinks—I mean, the Chinese—" he stammered, with a sidelong apologetic glance at my father—"it wouldn't be better to let the little car go first. There wouldn't be any room for the big car to pass the other one, and there sure isn't room for the big car to turn around. It can get back alright, so nobody can see it from the main road, but it'll have to back out."

"That's all right, Hank," my father told him heartily. "You show foresight. Tell Bill to watch for the turn into the narrow road, and go ahead there. Tell him and Otto, also, that they must be sure the road is clear before they go into the wood road. No one must see either car turning down there. Well! What else? I can see you have something else to say."

Hank's face turned a brick red.

"It sounds kinda fresh for me to be suggesting things," he said, and hesitated.

MAKES SUGGESTION

"Not if it's as sensible a suggestion as the last one," my father said. "Out with it."

"Why, I thought if we were bringing those two Chinese back with us, there'd be less chance of their being seen if they were down on the floor of this car. And oughtn't we to have some blankets and pillows, and maybe some empty suitcases to pile on top of them, so if anybody—the police, or anybody—should happen along and take a look, why—perhaps—maybe—"

The boy's voice trailed off in an agony of embarrassment, but my father hastened to reassure him.

"We'll have you in the secret service if you don't look out," he said, with one of his rare laughs. "Now scuttle into the house and get Mrs. Underwood to give you about five bags or suitcases, three pillows suitable for the car, and two automobile blankets. Take the other boys with you, and make haste."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

How Science Tests the Heart

A visit to a modern hospital is somewhat bewildering to the average surgeon. A friend reported to me about the complicated machines seen on a tour of inspection of a recently constructed hospital. He was most interested in the room known as the "electrocardiograph" room. The name is taken from the instrument used for the electrical recording of the heart action.

Dr. Copeland

By means of an electrocardiogram it is possible to detect certain heart disorders which might otherwise be overlooked. The electric impulses emanating from the heart muscle are recorded on a graph. These are compared to a normal heart reading. By this comparison it is possible to ascertain certain changes in the action and force of the heart.

The description of the procedure in taking an electrocardiogram may seem somewhat technical. It is really quite simple and no harm or danger to the patient is involved.

One foot is put in a basin of water and one arm immersed in a similar basin. Wires lead to a strange-looking machine which produces a humming sound. This is the electrocardiograph machine making the record of the heart action. Its purpose is based upon the fact that the heart is a muscle and whenever it contracts an electrical change is produced. This change is recorded by a sensitive galvanometer which is attached to the extremities.

Contrary to the common belief this machine is of no benefit in the treatment of heart disease. It is merely a device for studying the action of the heart muscle. An electrocardiogram serves as a valuable aid in determining if there is any heart ailment. A more definite knowledge of the actual functioning of the heart is obtained and proper treatment may be outlined.

For example, there is a certain heart disturbance known as "heart block." In this disorder the impulses arising in the upper chambers of the heart do not reach the lower chambers of the heart within the normal time. The impulses are delayed and cause an irregular action of the heart. When this disturbance is neglected serious damage may be done to this vital organ. It is quickly detected by the electrocardiograph.

The electrocardiograph will often disclose the reason for certain vague discomforts of the heart that cannot be determined by a simple examination. It is of tremendous value in connection with the information obtained from the history of the case and from a careful physical examination of the afflicted person.

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Well, Globe Trotters, here is a real mark to shoot at.

Sixty-eight years of wedded bliss.

That's the record just hung up by two well-known Globe Trotters at Oil City, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Anderson.

Mr. Anderson is 89 and Mrs. Anderson will be 88 next month.

* * *

Speaking of the oil country reminds me of the pageant at Titusville in the near future commemorating the founding of that town and the drilling there of the first oil in the world by Edwin L. Drake.

Three Pittsburgh Globe Trotters will have a part in the great celebration — Bill Bales, who is the dance director of the pageant and participating in it as the Spirit of Oil (a job, the oil part, that seems more in the province of a Globe Trotter), E. W. Hickman, dramatic director at Carnegie Tech, who is directing the Titusville pageant, and Roy Minet.

Mrs. J. W. O'Brien, 2052 Termon avenue, is caring for a sick carrier pigeon, banded — Pittsburgh, 6996.

Bridgeville Holds Parade Tonight

A parade and a street dance tonight will open a week-end of preliminaries preparatory to the Bridgeville town outing, Monday, in Kennywood Park. Five fire departments, several troops of Boy Scouts, bands, trucks and floats of merchants will feature the parade.

The street dance will follow the march in front of the American Legion Hall, on Station street. The Good Will Club of St. Barbara's Church will be host. Mike Chabalic, is chairman. The outing Monday will be sponsered by the Bridgeville Chamber of Commerce.

MUSIC

LAWN CONCERT

Hotel Schenley

The Little Symphony Orchestra at Hotel Schenley lawn played one of its brightest concerts last night with J. Vick O'Brien conducting and two enormously talented players from Carnegie Tech as soloists.

Mr. Lissfelt

O'Brien's program included a Brahms Hungarian Dance, Dvorak's "Carnival" Overture, a Prelude of Jarnefelt, the favorite "Bumble Bee" of Rimsky - Korsakoff, and his own Andante "Isolation." This last is an intermezzo of great charm, nicely written and scored, and as sincere a musical poem as some of the MacDowell melodies. More of this music for our concerts and not so much "Madame Butterfly!"

William Stone, violinist, played the Saint - Saens "Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso" with fine poise and growing musicianship, giving the Couperin-Kreisler "La Precieuse" as encore. Earl Wild, pianist, played the Liszt "Hungarian Fantasy" with brilliant tone, and a Chopin Etude as encore. One of the largest audiences of the summer gave them a fine acclaim.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Local Contest Winner

Dorothy Rotay of Morgantown, West Virginia, came to town the other day, looking for a job. In the Sun-Telegraph, she read of the WJAS-Dick Powell radio contest and decided to try her talents. Out of 130 contestants, she is the sole survivor. She stands an excellent chance of winning the regional and national contests, and of becoming Dick's partner in a CBS network commercial.

Free Speech Restriction All Bosh

By BOAKE CARTER
(Pinch-hitting for Alexander)

Plenty of water has gone under the bridge—or maybe it should be more appropriate to say "plenty of air has gone through the microphone"—since I've done a guest column.

I've always envied radio columnists. When vacation times comes around each summer, they get all the fellows they take for "a ride" during the year, to pound out substitute columns while they bask their tired souls and weary fingers in the warming sun of some vacation beach.

There have been so many charges made that the administration has turned the speakers of present-day radio into administration propagandists and that freedom of speech is a lost art on the radio now—that it's time somebody stood up on his hind legs and said: "Bosh!"

FREE SPEECH

Speaking now strictly from my own experience, I can say that nothing like restriction of freedom of speech has come my way from the administration or from any of the new dealers, or official cabinet heads or my sponsors.

Running an editorial column five times a day as I do, it is perhaps one of the hardest types of news columns to get by with.

To my mind, the Federal Radio Commission's personnel—up until it was abolished the other day through creation of the Communications Commission, and the new commission has not been on the job long enough for one to form an opinion as to how it will work in the future—has been eminently fair on matters of free speech.

SOMEONE wants your property. Many people are anxious to find a house to rent. Have you placed an Ad in the Rental Columns?

AUSTIN DEFEATS SHIELDS IN DAVIS CUP SINGLES

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Bue Home Brace Typical. Road Slumps Kill Chance. Rivals Better Travelers. • Vance Deal Investigated. Giants Seeking Timber. Trojans Know Pitt Style.

It was typical Pirate baseball that showed the Pittsburgh club taking a big brace as soon as it got back to the home grounds after a sorry trip, with Bill Swift pitching a shutout for the first time this season and the team as a whole playing like league leaders in trouncing the St. Louis pennant contenders. If the Bucs while on the road could perform reasonably close to their home standards, they still would have a flag chance today instead of being out of the running. Vastly superior traveling form is the factor that has enabled the Giants, Cubs and Cards to distance the Picaroons.

Bill Swift

At Forbes Field, the Traynors have won 27 games against 17 defeats, a percentage of .611. That's a better record than the Cards have made at home, practically as good as the mark of the Cubs, and surpassed only by that of the Giants. It's to a home clean-up that the Terrys owe their flag lead, as they have won 36 out of 48 games at the Polo Grounds, or three out of every four, for a percentage of .750. The Cubs have won 29 and lost 17 at home, and the Cards have won 27 and lost 17. The road has been the undoing of the Pirates, as in sharp contrast to the .611 ball they have played here, they have won only 16 games out of 45 abroad, a percentage of only .356. All of the three other clubs have a traveling balance on the right side, the Cubs having won 27 and lost 19 abroad, the Cards having won 28 and lost 19, and the Giants having won 24 and lost 22.

LANDIS LOOKS INTO TRANSFER OF VANCE

The shifting about of more than 40 ball players between the St. Louis and Cincinnati clubs in the National League during the last three years caused fans on the outside to wonder at the apparent closeness of the existing business relations. As far as the public was informed, the repeated transfers of athletes from one club to the other brought no investigation by the powers of organized ball, but the latest shift, in which Pitcher Dazzy Vance was sent back to the Cardinals by the Reds, appears to have been an exception.

Commissioner K. M. Landis has called Branch Rickey on the carpet to explain the circumstances of the deal. It is said that the judge's curiosity was aroused by the fact that in the papers covering the transfer, and filed with him for his approval, there was no mention of any consideration having passed between the clubs. Landis wants to know specifically how much the Cards paid for Vance, or how, if they didn't pay anything, the deal was worked out. Rickey may have a sound explanation to offer, but on the surface the transaction suggests strongly the loaning of a player, which baseball law strictly prohibits.

PLAYER MAY BE ADDED TO GIANT SQUAD

Bill Terry is taking no chances that might cause the pennant to slip away from the Giants, and is determined to strengthen his forces wherever possible. When Pitcher Adolfo Luque failed to appear at the Polo Grounds this week in his familiar role of batting to the New York players in infield practice, it developed that Terry had sent him on a scouting trip. Somebody on the Albany club was to be sized up, it was said, and the published guesses as to the man to be inspected mentioned Freddie Sington and Walter Powell, outfielders, and Pitcher Cy Blanton. The last name will give Bill Benswanger a laugh, as Blanton happens to be Pirate property and a fine prospect for next year.

Freddie Sington

One New York view is that Sington is the player whom Luque was sent out to inspect. Sington is the Jewish athlete who first won fame as a football player for University of Alabama, having been chosen as all-America tackle in 1930. Since he entered professional baseball in 1931 he has been making steady progress, and this year his slugging has been very impressive. But like Powell, Sington is owned by Washington, and just how Terry expects to get him is not very clear.

PITT SYSTEM KNOWN TO MANY TROJANS

It would be hard to imagine a more unseasonable subject than football in weather of the present scorching type, but not only are they going ahead with arrangements for the all-star game at the World Fair in Chicago on August 31, but a bulletin from the University of Southern California forces on the attention of perspiring local fans the big game which the Trojans will play with the Panthers at the Pitt Stadium on October 13, the show game of the local season.

The bulletin gives a list of eligible players showing that the Trojan squad will include no fewer than 17 members of the varsity aggregation that gave Pitt that sadly remembered 35-to-0 walloping in the Rose Bowl on January 2, 1933. Ordinarily, the lineup of a college football team changes greatly from year to year, but in this case Coach Howard Jones is going to have left over plenty of gridders who were sophomores in the 1932 season and who know the Pitt system of play first hand.

WARBURTON AND OTHER STARS HOLD OVER

Headed by the great Scooter Warburton, the list of Southern California stars who will be facing Pitt for the second time includes also Julius Bescos, a reserve two seasons ago but now rated the greatest pass receiver on the Coast; Cal Clemens, a gigantic blocking back; Haskell Wotkyns, who subbed for Warburton at quarter in 1932, but at present a fullback; George Lady, 235-pound tackle; Jorgenson, center; Reboin and Webb, halfbacks; Browning, end; Harper, Coughlin and Ostling, tackles; Beard, McGinley and Bardin, guards, and Matthews, quarterback.

Scooter Warburton

Against that array, Jock Sutherland will be able to call on eleven men who saw service on the last ill-fated Rose Bowl trip. Incidentally, with the exception of Capt. Doc Hartwig, Izzy Weinstock and Stan Olejnicsak, they made up Pitt's second team on that day. They are Louis Wojcihovski and Harvey Rooker, ends; Bob Hoel and Olejnicsak, tackles, the latter having been the sixth tackle used; Hartwig and Ken Ormiston, guards; Miller Munjas, quarterback; Mike Nicksick, halfback, and Weinstock and Heinie Weisenbaugh, fullbacks, by shifting Weisenbaugh to a halfback post, an experiment that has been tried, Coach Sutherland could present almost the same team that walked off the field at the close of the Rose Bowl game, while Southern California could put on the field its finishing eleven almost to a man.

Finalists In Parks Tennis Tournament

MRS. JEAN ARTZBERGER

Mrs. Artzberger, playing from West Park, perennial winner of the local public parks tennis tournament, is a finalist again today at Frick Park in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's tournament. Winner goes to National tourney. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

MISS ELIZABETH M'COLLIGAN

Miss McColligan, the winner of the South Park eliminations, is opposing Mrs. Artzberger for the local inter-parks tennis title this afternoon. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

SUN-TELEGRAPH FINALS TODAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

If the threat of heavy weather that lurked hereabouts throughout yesterday fails to materialize violently prior to tonight, the annual Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh Parks tennis championships will terminate an 11-day run with title combats on the Frick Park courts on Braddock avenue, just off Forbes street, this afternoon.

The record field of 286 contenders that fared forth a week ago last Tuesday in quest of titular honors, the splendid new Sun-Telegraph challenge cups, and trips to Minneapolis as Sun-Telegraph guests and Pittsburgh delegates to the National Public Parks championships from August 13 to 19, has been reduced to almost the vanishing point.

WOMEN STARS CLASH

The women's singles wind-up, wherein Mrs. Jean Artzberger, bedecked with the municipal feminine crown since 1930, carries West Park colors into action against a new challenger, clever Elizabeth McColligan, of South, opens the program at 2:15 o'clock. Immediately after the ladies' fracas, there will follow a special exhibition battle wherein Dr. Dave and Dr. John O'Loughlin, P. A. A. stars, will either meet each other in singles or pair off with two other district club performers in a doubles affair. The man-to-man feature, in which Jimmy O'Connor, Highland hope, will continue his spectacular comeback attempt by opposing either Harry Wald, Frick ace, or Al McCabe, Olympia champion, is scheduled for 4 p. m. or a little thereafter. Award of the 36 valuable Sun-Telegraph trophies that await the winners and runners-up in every branch of the parks play will conclude the festivities.

O'Connor, former Carnegie Tech and Duquesne net ace and runner-up to Dave O'Loughlin for the 1925 Western Pennsylvania masculine singles title, entered the ultimate bracket early yesterday by virtue of 5-7, 6-0, 6-4, 6-2 decision over Joe Kristufek, South premier and McKeesport luminary, who incidentally aims to matriculate as a freshman at Duquesne next September.

WALD LEADS McCABE

Wald, first seeded contender in the tourney, and McCabe, former Wooster College court captain, were interrupted by darkness in the third stanza of their semi-final struggle last evening with Wald in front by the tally of 6-4, 11-9, 1-1. The performers were sufficiently late enough in starting to have rendered the possibility of their finishing prior to dusk a precarious one at best. The meeting was slated to be resumed from the Friday stopping point at 10 o'clock this morning.

The women's semi-finals were completed Thursday, when Mrs. Artzberger defeated Betty Recker, of North Park, 6-1, 6-3, and Miss McColligan cared for young Joy Hartman, of Olympia, 3-6, 6-1, 6-1.

DRESSEN GETS CINCY POST

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 28.—(AP.)—Charley Dressen will leave the Nashville club of the Southern Association after today's game to go to Cincinnati as manager of the major league Reds, it has been learned from an authoritative source.

Dressen will report to Cincinnati in time to begin his managerial duties with tomorrow's game between the Reds and the Chicago Cubs at Cincinnati. He succeeds Bob O'Farrell.

No officials of the Nashville club were available last night to discuss details of the trade, which involves only players and no cash, or to say who would succeed Dressen here.

Confirmation of the deal came after Jimmy Hamilton, business manager of the Nashville club, had said late yesterday afternoon that Nashville had rejected an offer made by Larry McPhail, vice president of the Reds, to swap a group of players for Dressen. At that time Hamilton said that a proposition made by Nashville to sell Dressen to Cincinnati for $12,500 was still open.

Dressen will receive a contract with the Cincinnati club for the rest of the 1934 season and probably for both 1935 and 1936.

The new Cincinnati skipper, who is now 35 years old, began his major league baseball career with the Reds in 1924, when Cincinnati purchased him from St. Paul. His home is in Decatur, Ill.

PIRATES BUY PITCHER

The Pittsburgh Pirates this morning announced the closing of a deal whereby Pitcher Wayne Osborne, a righthander with the Mission Club, of the Pacific Coast League, becomes a member of the Bucs. Negotiations were completed late last night by Scout Bill Hinchman, who is touring the coast cities for new talent.

Osborne is 21 years old, stands six feet two and one-half inches, weighs 172 pounds and has won 13 games and lost 16.

The Pirates also have announced they have trained for the last time at Paso Robles, Cal. From now on, the Buccos will do their spring conditioning at San Bernardino, near Los Angeles. This announcement was made by President William E. Benswanger last night.

While the Buccos were on the Coast last Spring, the officials did a bit of scouting with the idea in mind of locating a new camp. San Bernardino was one of the towns that put in bids for the Buccaneers and after due consideration, the new site was selected.

The field on which the Pirates will work is located some three miles outside the city limits and has a new grandstand accomodating 5,000 fans. The Pirates have trained at Paso Robles for the past 11 seasons.

The Pirates are in the second division, but the Oakland Orchard today will ring with vibrant notes suggestive of a holiday. There are at least two unusual developments concerning the impending diamond fight between the Pirates and Cardinals.

In the first place the one and only Jerome (Dizzy) Dean, in person, is all set to face the Pirates as he strives for his nineteenth success of the current campaign.

The other sidelight has to do with Secondbaseman Cookie Lavagetto, who is to be honored by the Italian-Americans of Allegheny County. No less a personage than Attorney Charles J. Margiotti, will make the speech of presentation when the 19-year-old lad receives his gift.

COOKIE MAY PLAY

Manager Pie Traynor announces he will try to make the occasion a complete success by sending Cookie to second base for the afternoon. The youngster has not been himself for several weeks and he was benched in favor of the veteran Tommy Thevenow, but Traynor will honor Lavagetto's supporters by throwing him into the battle.

The kingpin pitcher of the majors, the colorful Dizzy Dean will have to outdo Waite Hoyt to add another triumph to his long string. If Hoyt has any of the samples passed out by Bill Swift yesterday, Jerome appears to be in a little jam.

Swift gave one of the best slab performances of the year at the home of the Pirates as he mowed down the Redbird attack ruthlessly on seven hits. And while he was shutting the door in the faces of the enemy, the Pirates were according Bill just the right kind of support to get him a shutout triumph. The score was 4 to 0.

Jess Haines, grand veteran, swapped punches beautifully with Swift through seven rounds. Nary a runner had been able to get around the sacks as the Pirates came up in the seventh.

SUHR HITS TRIPLE

Suhr opened the stretch round with a triple that almost hung Rothrock on the right field stands. Traynor came through with a single and the spell was broken. Traynor slipped to third on Thevenow's hit-and-run single and Pie scored on Grace's hit. Thevenow hustled to third and registered on Swift's fly.

Suhr added the last run in the eighth with one out. Gus worked Jim Mooney for a pass and he scooted to third on Traynor's single and scored on Thevenow's long fly.

Chillysauce

Two shutout triumphs in two days speaks volumes for the fighting spirit of the Buccos. There is no doubt that the Pirates are hustling for Pie, regardless of what you hear.

Larry French, in recording his great victory in Philly Thursday, pitched only 11 times to the plate, according to Jimmy Murray, radio reader, who kept a careful count of the pitches. Larry and the batsmen on five pitches in two separate rounds.

Umpire Charley Moran, officiating in the current Forbes Field series, is worried over the condition of Cy Rigler, his colleague. Moran says that Rigler has been hot in an auto speeding this week. There is a deep fear that Rigler is through.

Frank Frisch speaking:

"I feel we are not going to have considering our trouble. Joe Medwick and Lloyd Waner are too good to be on the bench, but both were hurt, and just when Bill Hallahan hits his natural pitching stride, he goes down with an injury. Our boys are hustling and that's all anybody can do."

Frisch has a feeling that Hallahan's deviation from his usually great form was the result of his great work in Luther's game.

Present, Past Champs Meet

CARL F. KAUFFMANN — CHARLEY FERRERA

Kauffmann, local star, will be seeking his fourth and Ferrera, of San Francisco, his third National Public Links title in the tournament which gets under way over the South Park course on Monday. Kauffmann was the winner in 1927, '28 and '29, and Ferrera in 1931 and last year. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture, taken at the South Park course.

BUNNY WINNER BY SCORES OF 6-4, 6-4, 6-1

BULLETIN.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 28.—(INS.)—Fred Perry won the first set of his Davis Cup match with Sidney Wood, of New York, today, 6-1. Wood, like Frank Shields, his teammate who dropped the opening match of Davis Cup play to Bunny Austin, 6-4, 6-4, 6-1, was erratic and wild.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 28.—(AP.)—Henry Wilfred (Bunny) Austin today defeated Frank X. Shields, 6-4 6-4, 6-1, to send Great Britian away to a flying start against the United States in defense of the Davis Cup.

The big American held the slightly built Austin on fairly even terms through the first two sets, leading 4-2 in game at one stage of the second, but he could not stand up against the drive the Britton loosed in the deciding set.

It was a repetition although even more crushing of their interzone final meeting in 1931 when Austin won, 8-6, 6-2, 7-5.

Shields won the toss and served first, losing the point as he hit wildly out Austin's return, and then went ahead to lose the game from 15. He was hitting every shot with everything he had, grunting audibly as he banged at some of them.

Austin held his service, running it out from 15, but Frank came back to smash across his own service at love, burning over two service aces.

Shields made a great effort to break Austin in the fourth game, carrying the game to deuce, but Bunny pulled it out at 9-7. Frank became rattled in the fifth game, going to the water cooler with the score 40-15, apparently under the impression he had won. The crowd roared as the referee called him back and had him serve again, which he did to win. Aided by a net cord shot, Frank then broke Austin in the sixth game to pull up to 3-3 in games.

HIGH WIND PREVAILS

Games went to 4-4 with the high wind whipping dust in the receiver's eyes and then Austin broke Shields in the ninth game at love as Frank sent four returns just over the baseline.

Rushing to the net behind every serve, Austin lost the first three points of the tenth game, but then steadied down to outplay Shields in the long rallies and pulled out the game from deuce and the set, 6-4, as Frank knocked the final point into the net.

Both held their initial services starting the second set, then Shields went ahead 2-1 on his own service despite two double-faults.

Piling into the net at every opportunity to kill Shield's lobs, Austin held his own service from deuce. Bunny halted the play at one point to complain of the noise the courtside fans were making.

Frank banged across three service aces to hold his service at love again lead 3-2.

SHIELDS CHEERED

A lucky net cord shot and then a superb placement which brought cheers from the crowd gave Frank a service break and the sixth game but he immediately lost his advantage as Austin broke through his service at love. Bunny then served beautifully to pull up on even terms at 4-4.

Austin again broke Shield's service in the ninth game from 15 as Frank's ground strokes lost their speed and accuracy and then went ahead behind his own service to take the second set at 6-4 as the crowd of 17,000 went wild. The final point saw a dozen brilliant exchanges before the Briton worked Shields out of position and passed him cleanly.

The match looked to be over as Austin cracked Shields' service at love opening the third set. Frank could not seem to hit any shot right.

Bunny followed his own serve to the net, where he either killed Frank's return or forced him to hit weakly into the net, but Frank came back gamely to win his own service, pulling up from love-40.

FRANK TAKES RES'T

After the third game Frank stopped to sit down a minute at the referee's chair and hold a whispered conversation with Capt. Dick Williams.

The rest and conference appeared to do little good, as Austin held his own service to lead, 3-1 in games.

Bunny then Broke Shields' service again, for the fourth time in five serves, to lead 4-1. The picture of Austin tearing into the net on nearly every shot seemed to unnerve Shields who invariably hit weak returns right in Bunny's reach for easy kills.

COAST GOLFERS DISPLAY FORM IN FREE LINKS TUNEUP

MUNY ACES SET FOR TOURNEY INAUGURAL

By TOM BIRKS

Visiting golf stars trained their heavy artillery on South Park's layout again today as 162 of the contestants here for the National Public Links championship scheduled to start on Monday, played over the scene of battle.

While much interest was centered upon the play of the California players, including the Los Angeles team, Harding Cup champion, it was the doings of the San Francisco aggregation that caught the eye of the critics yesterday. Led by the defending champion, Charley Ferrara, the San Francisco team played a five-ball match. The best four scores of the team totaled 284. This doubled is 568. Last year the Angels won with 609, which gives some indication of what to expect from the San Francisco stars.

DENY MAKING THREAT

It is a well balanced team that Ferrara is leading. The defending champion himself had a 70, two under par. He had three birdies on the outgoing nine, which he negotiated in 35 strokes. He practically matched the card coming home, dropping a shot on the eleventh, and also one on the sixteenth, but he had a birdie on No. 14.

Arthur Cato, the Jap and featured member of the Seals' team, turned in a 71, 38 out and 33 coming back, one under par.

For the individual championship, Southern California is banking on Bruce McCormick, 1934 city champion of Los Angeles, and Joe Nichols, city champion of Long Beach. Nichols has been runner-up twice in the national event.

Denial was made today by representatives of the California delegations that they had threatened to withdraw from tournament because of dissatisfaction over transportation facilities and the fact that the course is not closed to non-tournament players to permit of unrestricted practice. They admitted not being entirely satisfied with conditions, but said they never had any thought of pulling out after coming so far to play.

CAMPBELL GETS 69

Scotty Campbell, of Seattle, set a new non-competitive record for the South Park course yesterday as he turned in rounds of 37-32—69, three under par. Campbell is the Canadian amateur champion and also holds the Northwestern amateur title.

This afternoon the local team will play a match with the Sacramento squad. This will be the last workout for the local aggregation.

Topping a field of more than 70 players, Mrs. Sara Fownes Wadsworth, of Oakmont, turned in a low gross score of 84 to take down top honors in the one-day tourney for women at Westmoreland yesterday.

The low gross leaders in the doubles were Miss Genevieve Bell, of Allegheny, and Mrs. Wadsworth, each having an 81.

In the low net play, Mrs. Clark Maxwell and Mrs. J. H. Throm, both of Stanton Heights, led with 70.

BELL CHAMPION AT SEABRIGHT

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 28.—(AP.)—Berkeley Bell, of New York, continued his sensational tennis comeback yesterday by winning the Seabright singles bowl from Bryan M. Grant, of Atlanta, Ga., in a long five-set battle, 5-7, 6-7, 6-3, 2-6, 6-4.

Service aside, Bell's game was far below his play in beating Wilmer Allison Thursday in the semi-finals.

Three times in the first set, after leading, 40-0 or 40-15, he lost long deuce games and in the fourth set his errors let Grant run up a 4-0 lead. His backhand was weak.

Grant won in one respect. He fell 10 times to five sprawls taken by Bell.

The final in the women's doubles saw Helen Jacobs, Berkeley, Cal., and Elizabeth Ryan, London, England, triumphed over Mrs. John W. Van Ryn, Philadelphia, and Josephine Cruickshank, Santa Ana, Cal., 7-5, 6-3.

Miss Jacobs meets Carolin Babcock, of Los Angeles, in the women's singles final this afternoon.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: KANGAROOS IN TREES—Australia is indeed a land of strange animals, strange plants and paradoxes and is noted especially for its strange kangaroos. There are many varieties of these queer animals, the strangest of which is the Bennett kangaroo, making its home in the trees high above the ground and leading the same sort of life as the monkey. THE ANATOMICAL WONDER—Ed Hayes, of Mountain Air, New Mexico, started life as a semi-invalid, but, through constant effort and perseverance, has changed his physical condition to near perfection. When a small boy, it was discovered that the cartilages of his body were weak. To overcome this weakness, he worked to develop his muscle. Today he can displace his entire abdomen by raising the intestines into the chest, place his spinal column against the frontal abdominal muscles, expand one side of his chest at a time, displace his shoulder blades and collapse his entire chest. LENORE KIGHT RETAINS HER 440 TITLE

DETROIT, July 28.—(AP.)—An 18-year-old Massachusetts girl won her first national championship—the 220-yard breaststroke—and Miss Lenore Kight, brilliant aquatic star from Homestead, Pa., successfully defended her 440-yard free style crown as the National A. A. U. swimming and diving championship meet here reached the half-way mark in a four-day program yesterday.

Alice Bridges, of Whitinsville, Mass., ascended to the 220-yard title, which Mrs. Eleanor Holm Jarrett did not defend, by sprinting to a four-yard lead, which she held to the finish. In second place was Johanna Gorman, of Homestead, Pa., who made a great finish to beat Dorothy Forbes, of Camden, N. J., by less than a yard. Miss Bridge's time was 3:00.06.

The 440 event, which drew the best field of the meet thus far, was a fight from start to finish between Miss Kight and curly-headed Katherine Rawls, of Miami Beach, Fla., who swam in spite of a bad cold. Miss Kight gained a lead of four yards and made a great stretch swim to win by 12 yards.

Olive McKean, of Seattle, Wash., who Thursday took Miss Kight's 100-meters title away from her, had to be content with third place, only inches ahead of June Burr, of Miami, Fla. The time was 5:40.02.

Jane Wright, of Cleveland, won the junior girls 100-meters final in 1:15.6, with Peg Dott, Pittsburgh, second; Evelyn Rawls, Miami Beach, third, and Helen Perry, Cleveland, fourth. The summary:

200-yard backstroke — Alice Bridges, Whitinsville, Mass., first; Johanna Gorman, Homestead, Pa., second; Dorothy Forbes, Camden, N. J., third; Elizabeth Kompa, New York, fourth. Time—3:00.6.

440-yard free style—Lenore Kight, Homestead, Pa., first; Katherine Rawls, Miami Beach, Fla., second; Olive McKean, Seattle, Wash., third; June Burr, Miami, Fla., fourth. Time—5:40.2.

Junior girls 100-meters—Jane Wright, Cleveland, first; Peg Dott, Pittsburgh, second; Evelyn Rawls, Miami Beach, third; Helen Perry, Cleveland, fourth. Time—1:15.6.

220-yard free style relay—Washington A. C., Seattle, first (Brooks, Petty, Buckley, McKean); Lake Shore A. C., Chicago, second; Detroit Yacht Club, third, and Ohio Women's Swimming Association, Cleveland, fourth.

NET PLAYOFFS BILLED TODAY

Four postponed team tussles are slated for running off this afternoon as local net authorities strive valiently to terminate the Pittsburgh Tennis Association Inter-Club League campaign in spite of bad weather setbacks that wrecked several week-ends of regularly scheduled contests. Bob Lampus and his Belmont Racquet Club crew can clinch Division I honors and the Davis Keg by sweeping their home fray with University Club.

Meanwhile in Division II, Austin Famariss will attempt to lead his College Avenue force out of the last place wilderness by taking them to the domain of Bill Clardy's Westinghousers. In Division III, the Electrics, leading Emsworth by a one-match margin, will trek to the lot of their arch-rivals for a joust that inevitably will determine the champion. In the same group, Minnetonka will visit College Avenue Seconds.

Bob Madden, Pitt Freshman and University Club star, and George Soisson, diminutive sorrel-top from Connellsville, will trek to the National Junior and boys' tennis championships at Culver Military Academy the week after next as official delegates of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association.

In wind-up frays of the annual Pittsburgh Center tournament yesterday at the P. A. A., Madden and Soisson registered decisive victories, the former downing his perennial rival, Ralph Bald, of Rockwood, 6-2, 5-7, 6-4, 6-2, for the 18-year-old diadem, while the latter accounted for Richard Haase, Uniontown darkhorse, 6-2, 6-2, for 15-year laurels.

Wildman Named Redstone Director

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., July 28.—A. Parker (Bo) Wildman, Brownsville, has been named athletic director at Redstone Township High School. He succeeds Clyde Smith, of New Eagle, who goes to Indiana University as line coach this fall.

Personalities In Softball

Johnny (Goodry) Walsko, manager of the Snubs A. C. team, of the South Side, managed to bring his team up from the cellar position into fourth place in Bracket V of the senior division in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's amateur softball tournament. The team lost its first three games and then made a spectacular comeback to win the next three. Goodry's team lost its last game by a 6-5 score to the Fort Black Community team, which lost only one game. Walsko was graduated from the South High School, where he played baseball and managed the football team.

John Walsko

It was Miss Edythe Forsythe's pitching and hitting that won the Bracket II championship of the girls' division for the Goldenson Vanities team in the Sun-Telegraph's softball tournament. She has won 20 games and lost only two this season, according to Manager Helen Kasputis. Edythe is leading the team in home runs. The Vanities played all of their softball games away from home. Play for the championship in the girls' division for the Western Pennsylvania championship will begin a week from tomorrow.

Hornsby's Wife Sues for Divorce

ST. LOUIS, July 28.—(AP.)—Rogers Hornsby, manager of the St. Louis Browns, is being sued for divorce at Clayton by Mrs. Mary Jeanette Hornsby, his second wife.

She alleged indignities and asserted Hornsby has an ungovernable temper, is jealous, and "criticized, nagged, fretted and heckled" the plaintiff.

SCHUMACHER ROUTS PHILS

Associated Press.

If the Giants ever need anything to bolster their pride, beyond their record of winning the world championship last season, they can pick on a strictly "home-made" pitcher, young Hal Schumacher, of Dolgeville, N. Y.

This husky young right-hander, only 22 years old now, came directly to the Giants from St. Lawrence University in 1931 and except for a short time spent with Bridgeport in the Eastern League that year has been developed into one of the circuit's leading pitchers while wearing the Giant uniform.

Standing second only to Dizzy Dean, of the Cardinals, in the records, Schumacher pitched his fifteenth victory of the season as compared to five defeats when he set the Phillies down with seven hits yesterday to win, 6 to 3. In the course of the afternoon he registered six whiffings, gave only one walk, and saw two of the runs the Phils put over score on Johnny Moore's homer in the eighth.

The second-place Cubs were idle and the third-place Cardinals took a 4-to-0 whitewashing from the reviving Pirates. As a result, the Giants' lead was increased to three games over the Cubs and five over the Cards.

The Koppers Coal and the U. S. Engineers teams will meet today in a Bracket I game of the senior division for the right to get into the playoffs of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's Western Pennsylvania amateur softball tournament. Each team has won five games and lost two. The game will be staged on the Shaler street field, off the Sawmill Run boulevard, at 2:30 o'clock.

Either Claus J. Olfe or George Schurr will get the call for the pitching assignment. Carl Lovitt is slated to pitch for the Engineers and Don Sullivan will receive him.

Due to injuries suffered by several of the players, the Hunzeker Radiators forfeited their scheduled game to the Campbell Lunch Shamrocks. This game gave the Shamrocks the Bracket III of the senior division championship. The contest was to be played today.

Irving Brenner, former Duquesne University basketball star, registered his sixth consecutive win as the Commercial Garage softballers defeated the Fort Black Community Club, 8 to 4, at Washington Park yesterday for the Bracket V championship of the senior division.

The Commercials took the lead in the third inning, when they collected six straight hits to score five runs. They added two more markers in the next inning. Fort Black tallied its first run in the fifth, when Weir singled to score Fred Crum. The Blacks rang up two more runs in the sixth, while the winning team registered another count in its half of the same inning. The losers scored their last run in the seventh.

SOFTBALL SLANTS

The Elizabeth Produce team won the championship of Bracket IV of the senior competition by defeating the Ardmore Gardens, 10 to 4. This victory marked the Produce team's seventh consecutive win.

It was Shortstop Smith's hitting that brought victory to the E. J. McAvoys as they downed the Dragons, 12 to 6, in a Bracket V game of the senior division. The McAvoys scored their triumph in the last inning when they tallied six times. Smith collected two triples and a home run to carry off the batting honors.

Manager Johnny Weinheimer's team, which finished its softball schedule won two games and lost five. The team got off to a bad start and could not get back into a winning stride.

The Hungry 9 Club added the Champion Coal to their list of victims as they won, 6-1, in Bracket VII of the senior class. The team has qualified for the playoffs. The Morgan Blue Birds also defeated the Champions, 7 to 5, in the same bracket.

Honus Says:

By HONUS WAGNER,
Former Star, Now Coach of Pirates.

To the Sports Editor:

Recently I yelped in this space because people always talked about the weather when they couldn't do anything about it anyway. But, you know, I've been thinking and I know that this talk about the weather that has been going on for a couple of thousand years may get somewhere after all. Take this last hot spell. I bet you in 25 or 40 years from now there won't be a single house that won't be without a cooling device of some kind. It has just started and you can expect pretty fast progress from now on.

Honus Wagner

Regards,
HONUS WAGNER.

P.G.A. TOURNEY NEAR FINAL

BUFFALO, July 28.—(AP.)—Denny Shute, playing brilliant golf, his tee shots booming out onto the fairways add his irons clicking magnificently, takes on Craig Wood, of Deal, N. J., in one of the semi-final matches in the Annla Professional Golfers' Association championship tournament over the Park Club course here.

The fact that Shute has been playing such fine golf is the reason why the gallery has established him as the favorite for the title which Gene Sarazen dropped Thursday.

Shute has hung up a competitive record of some sort by shooting 98 holes in match play in 28 under par. The answer to that is his putter. In 34 holes against Ky Laffoon on Thursday he used his putter 48 times.

The Wood-Shute match is a repetition of their playoff for the 1933 British open championship, which Shute eventually won by five strokes in a 36-hole overtime duel. They both scored convincing victories in the quarter finals, Wood dumping Al Watrous, of Detroit, 2 and 1, and Shute overhauling Al Houghton, of Washington, D. C., 6 and 5.

The other semi-final finds Paul Runyan, the betting odds choice, a top-heavy favorite over Gene Kunes, of Norristown, Pa.

BOOSTER GAME ENDS IN TIE

With President William E. Benswanger, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, Manager Pie Traynor and members of the Pittsburgh and St. Louis National League teams looking on, the McKeesport and Greensburg team of the Penn State Association battled to a 6-6 tie at McKeesport last evening.

The game was a Booster's Day affair, and was preceded by a fungo hitting, throwing and base circling meet. Harold Peckman won the fungo event, Tumelty the throwing honors and Ed Morgan the base circling test, rounding the sacks in 15 seconds.

After the game the major leaguers joined with the minors at a banquet. The Pirates are interested in the McKeesport club and St. Louis controls the Greensburgers.

A timely triple by Samloff in the eighth inning with the bases loaded gave Washington a 5-to-1 win over Charleroi. Wills, on the slab for Washington, limited Charleroi to four hits.

Monessen socked out an 8-to-4 win over Jeannette at Monessen.

STOCKS RISE AS TRADING DWINDLES

NEW YORK, July 28.—Stock trading dwindled following opening improvement today. American Telephone, heavy yesterday, sold fractionally lower, but Consolidated Gas was steadier.

Du Pont gained around a point while small advances were shown by Case, Santa Fe, New York Central, United States Steel, American Tobacco B, Kennecott, Loews and General Motors.

While partial relief from heat and drought in the West made business observers more hopeful, week-end reports furnished no indication of a break in the seasonal lull.

AUTOS DROP

Automobile output, after holding steady for several weeks, declined substantially this week. Cram estimated output at 59,412 units, 6,417 below that of the previous week and 5,013 less than in the same week last year.

As a result of the decline, July automobile production estimates were revised downward to 260,000 units for the United States and Canada. Further seasonal recession in demand for cars was forecast for August.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York reported that department store sales in the New York metropolitan area in the first half of July were 4 per cent higher than a year ago.

STUDY MARGINS

Preparations for formulation of margin regulations by the Federal Reserve Board in accordance with the federal security exchange control measure were seen in the announcement that the stock exchange was collecting data on margins. The exchange is seeking from its members an analysis of the margin holdings of customers and by brokerage firms and their partners.

Not much change in steel operations next week was expected on the basis of tentative schedules for the period in some centers.

The British pound opened at $5.03 11-16, off 1-16 of a cent. French francs were unchanged at 6.59½ cents. The German mark rallied in a thin market.

WHEAT SCORES SHARP RISE

CHICAGO, July 28.—Material upturns of grain prices early today reflected unlooked-for advances of wheat quotations at Liverpool and also continued bullish crop reports from Canada. Winnipeg messages said good general rains were needed to save Canadian crops from further deterioration.

Opening ½ to 1 cent higher, September new 99¼@⅜, wheat afterward scored additional gains. Corn started ½@1⅛ up, September 66⅛@½, and continued higher.

NEW YORK, July 28.—The recent episodes of weakness in the speculative marketplaces point to the folly of the policy of "soaking business."

Mr. Rukeyser

Obviously, the baffling economic riddles of recovery called for a mobilization of the best administrative brains in the United States.

The "New Deal" administration made a gallant effort to reverse the tides of depression, but the effectiveness of the recuperative program was reduced somewhat by inconsistencies of men and principles.

Idea men and researchers were in some instances put into administrative posts, instead of tested leaders of broad executive experience.

MISTAKES MADE

Likewise, the single-minded devotion to recovery, which was the outstanding issue before the American people, was impaired by flirting with irrelevant long-term reforms, which could have waited. Likewise, the timing and co-ordination of the NRA with the farm relief program were faulty. Moreover, the PWA, which was expected to impart the lift to business at the very time when business was being loaded down with additional burdens, proceeded haltingly, instead of decisively. The chief lacked the fortitude to go ahead and achieve the major objective swiftly, but held back in fear of graft and the mistakes inherent in bold action.

An insider at Washington, Ralph E. Flanders, president, Jones and Lamson Machine Company and former chairman of the industrial advisory board of the NRA, in referring to the shortcomings of the PWA, pointed out:

"(The) undertakings (of the PWA) have suffered from an unwise throwing overboard of the preparatory work done in the previous administration, and from ignoring the importance of the time factor and the relation of the work to other elements of the administration's program. There is a constructive, or a reconstructive, job to be done here."

UNITED DRIVE NEEDED

The next phase of recovery should be a fact facing one, free of ballyhoo, prejudice, and economic hoodlumism. The country needs a united effort on the part of government, business and labor.

In the circumstances, it is antisocial for public officeholders to throw monkey wrenches into the delicate machinery by making aspersions on business profits.

Joseph P. Kennedy, a business man at Washington, in his role as chairman of the securities and exchange commission, said some forthright words about the legitimacy of business and finance and the usefulness of profits.

DEMPSEY CASE PERJURY HINTED

RENO, Nev., July 28.—(AP.)—James C. McKay, Reno sportsman whose New York trial with William Graham on mail fraud charges resulted in a jury disagreement, was accused of committing perjury in testifying as Jack Dempsey's divorce residence witness here in 1931 in a complaint filed yesterday by District Attorney Melvin Jepson.

Jepson said the complaint against McKay "may lead to some complications" regarding the legality of the Dempsey divorce but he said he did not believe the decree should be voided in any way. Jepson said:

"I think Dempsey was here more than long enough to establish his residence."

The records in the divorce case, in which Dempsey charged extreme mental cruelty, are sealed by court order. He was granted the decree after a 20-minute hearing at which only McKay and himself were witnesses. The former Estelle Taylor was not represented in the action.

The ex-heavyweight champion was married July 8, 1933, to the former Hannah Williams, Broadway's "Cheerful Little Earful." A few months before that she and Roger Wolff Kahn, son of Otto Kahn, international banker, were divorced here.

DOOMED SLAYER FILES PLEA

International News Service.

SHAWNEETOWN, Ill., July 28.—Declaring that he shot and killed Dr. Homer L. Meyers, 55, prominent Eldorado dentist, in self-defense when the latter assaulted him with a wrench, Harold St. Clair, Ohio ex-convict under sentence of death, yesterday filed a motion for a new hearing.

St. Clair pleaded guilty to a charge of first degree murder and was sentenced to die in the electric chair October 19. Asked his motive for the crime, St. Clair said:

"I'll carry the reason with me to the electric chair."

In the motion for a new hearing, St. Clair declares he "was dazed and bewildered and did not realize the consequences of pleading guilty" to the murder indictment.

A woman companion also was arrested and indicted, but the charges were dismissed when St. Clair offered to plead guilty only if the woman was released. The state agreed to this and quashed the indictment. She had denied all knowledge of the murder.

Dr. Meyers was found shot to death on a farm June 18, several hours after he had left with St. Clair to look over the property. St. Clair posed as a prospective buyer of the farm.

Cast Into Eden

By HENRY C. ROWLAND

CHAPTER VIII.

They groped their way into the bedroom and to the big tropical cane-bottomed bed. It was not much of a couch for comfort until one got used to it, but at least it was cool.

A little too cool for the relaxation of restful sleep, Jerome discovered in the early morning chill. Linda had found the same a little earlier than he was aware of it.

A soft green glow was filtering through the slits in the jalousies. Without awakening Linda, who was deep in the restful sleep of security, Jerome slipped out into the sweet fragrant morning. It was already growing hot even in that heavily shaded glen. The terrors of the night had withdrawn themselves.

Jerome followed the little stream down to the beach in the hope of sighting some sort of vessel in the offing. But all that he saw was a smooth sea, very distant mountains, and the dazzling blue sky.

A file of pelicans, composed as always of an odd number, paralleled the surf, executed a right oblique and halted in the cove. It was where Linda had bathed. It looked to Jerome like a good place for shell fish, limpets, crabs and periwinkles—"dog whelks" as the early voyagers called them. The tide was high and the sand a little firmer back of the beach. It was blown in ripples like a frozen breeze on the water's surface.

Sees Tracks

Jerome saw where tracks of some sort had disturbed it over to the right. They were curious and he could make nothing of them. It looked as if a number of individuals, young and old, had passed that way single file. But the children had moved out of line enough to show that they had been romping, turning cartwheels, and walking on their hands. The sand was too dry and deep to give clear-cut imprints. He could see in a general way that it must have been a little party of bare-footed natives.

Probably the one who had stolen Linda's clothes and afterwards his own. He had proof of this in coming upon one of Linda's sheer silk stockings. It was torn into ribbons as if the child had struggled for possession of it. Something else then caught his eye. It dangled from a low palm frond in a way that was not in rhythm with nature's arrangement. These curious fruits of the palm were Linda's shoes. The laces were knotted and some impish youngster had tossed them over the palm leaf stem. It looked as if this act had been inspired by malice because the shapely foot gear could not be crowded on to the splay feet of any of the party. He managed to knock them free with a thrown stick.

Gives Linda Shoes

Jerome was so pleased that he hurried back without further scouting. When he came to the steep ledge that made the natural dam for the pool the noise of the little fall drowned other splashing. He came therefore unaware upon Linda waist deep in the pool. He held up the shoes. She slid back into the water.

"Where did you find them?" she asked.

"Hanging from the stem of a palm leaf. I told you these pests were half-witted native kids."

He dropped the shoes on the bank and went on to the house. Linda lying prone in the shallow water and raised on her elbow made a lovely picture.

He was irritated at her indifference to his presence. She didn't seem to care any more than if he were a dog. He could not be sure whether this was due to lack of modesty or sensible acceptance of a situation that she could not help, or merely because he did not matter enough for her to care.

He stooped to pick up a jagged chunk of ligneous stone weighing about 10 pounds. Linda called, "Don't break anything just yet, Jerry."

"Why not?"

"Now that I've got my shoes we can go to where that bell was ringing and get hold of somebody and make them give back my dress and fit you out."

"You can't cruise around in nothing but a pair of deck shoes and a wisp or two of lace."

Makes Kilt

"Give me your shirt. It's long enough to make a kilt. You're so much taller."

He slipped it off and tossed it back to her.

"All right."

"We'll find out what's back there first."

Jerome gathered some eggs and was getting breakfast when Linda joined him. She made a bizarre and beautiful figure. His sleeveless undershirt she had caught round her waist by tendrils of flowering jasmine so that it kilted.

"Not so bad, is it, Jerry?"

"It's those stylish deck shoes that make you look indecent."

"They're as priceless as his horse to a man in the Bad Lands. Can't you protect your own feet some way?"

"I'll cut off a strip of your grass sleeping mat and bandage them. That bell wasn't far."

"No, and it sounded as if somebody was hitting it with his fist."

"No, it sounded muffled."

After breakfast Jerome cut long strips from the soft and supple sleeping mat by laying it on a flat stone and slashing with a piece of glass from a bottle. These strips he wound round his feet and up his ankles to make a buskin with some pieces of bark between it and his soles.

SYNOPSIS

Jerome Crain, young shipbuilder, and a lovely society girl, named Linda, escaped in a skiff from a yacht held in quarantine off San Cristobal. Jerome and Linda dislike each other; but, nevertheless, are willing to risk being mutually bored rather than endure an indefinite stay aboard ship. From the moment they land on a strange island, queer happenings occur. Their boat is set adrift, their clothing stolen; yet there is no other sign of a living human, except periodic cries from the jungle. Exploring, they come upon a small plantation and house having every appearance of being well tended but vacant. In it they find some priceless Spanish chests, a heavy whip, plenty of food, but no clothing. The cruel whip worries them. Suddenly a bell clangs and again weird screams are heard. Darkness falls and still no one arrives. Dozing on the porch, Jerry awakens with the creepy impression that something had brushed his face. Soon Linda shrieks—her slip had been torn off her by unseen hands in the dark. Then comes a slithering sound at the end of the verandah and again that mocking cry. Terrified, Jerome and Linda lock themselves in the house.

Junior Patrol Mail Box

How do you like the new contest topic for this week, fellows? All you have to do to win a prize is to write one of three best letters telling us what pet you would like to have the most, and why.

And your letter should'n't be more than 100 words long. Of course, you must be a Junior Patrol member to compete because this is a Junior Patrol contest for Junior Patrol members.

But if you aren't a member now, it's easy to send in your pledge signed up. You don't have to clip the coupon out of the paper—you can make a copy of it.

Maybe you have a pet now that you like a lot. Just go ahead and pretend you don't have it—and write a letter that would tell why you would like to have it more than any other.

It just doesn't matter what kind of a pet it is. You can write a letter about it. We know some fellows who have a wonderful time keeping fish, including the pretty tropical fish that come in all colors of the rainbow.

And some girls and fellows like to have a canary, singing and chirping in his cage all day long. And it's especially fun to watch him take a bath and fluff the water up in his feathers.

We don't want a single Junior Patrol member to forget that the Junior Patrol picnic will be held at West View Park Tuesday, July 31. Time is mighty short. If you haven't talked it over with your mother and father yet, do it now. We want every Junior Patrol member there. A special Junior Patrol program will start at 4 p. m., and you'll like every minute. Clip the coupon in the paper for free tickets.

Ambulance Case

Daily Short Short Story

By DON ALLEN

The Old Man was a hard egg and he never stood for any nonsense. Once he had pronounced judgement the case was settled and it didn't do any good to talk about it or try to explain. You might as well talk to a lamp post.

Jimmy Starr knew it, too, and so he just stood and took it the afternoon that Doc sacked him for drinking on duty.

Every one liked Jimmy and they were sorry to see him go; some of them tried to tell him so, but he didn't seem to hear what they were saying to him.

He just walked out the door and that was the last anybody ever saw of him. He's supposed to be tending a lighthouse somewhere now.

The funny thing about it was Jimmy Starr wasn't a drinking man. He'd take a drink now and then with the gang, of course, but no one ever saw him the least bit tight. That made it even harder to understand when he got the sack the way he did.

It really wasn't Jimmy's turn to assist the Old Man that day, but Slim Perry, whose trick it was, was expecting his mother in town and wanted to meet the train, so Jimmy offered to pinch-hit for him so he could get away. Jimmy was like that, always helping everybody.

It was an ambulance case that caused all the trouble.

When it came in, it was already pretty far gone and there had to be pretty quick action. The doc happened to be celar up in B, so they handed it to the Old Man. It was Caesarean case, and a mean one.

She was just a little bit of a woman, and young, too. Looked like she wasn't more than 18 or 19, and pretty as a picture. Had to play with the ether pretty careful with her heart jumping all over the place, and finally it took digitalis to get her over the hump.

Something got under Jimmy Starr's skin. Before they were halfway through, what you could see of his face was as white as his mask and his eyes had a funny far-away look in them.

The Old Man's a fast worker, though, and very good; he turned out a swell job. And the kid was a whopper—almost nine pounds.

When they wheeled her out the husband was sitting in the corridor by the elevators stiff as a mummy. When he saw her face he sort of strangled and almost folded up.

He was just a kid, too, and you could tell from the way his clothes looked that he hadn't been eating any too regular lately.

When his voice came back he asked in a husky, croaking voice: "My God, is she dead?"

Jimmy Starr had slipped his mask off and was standing beside the stretcher. He grinned like he was trying to cheer the kid up and went over and put his arm across his shoulders.

"Don't you worry," he said. "She came through fine. She's going to be as good as new in a little while. And your kid's a great big one, too."

The husband swallowed the lump in his throat and started to cry.

Jimmy banged him on the back, to buck him up, then the elevator stopped at the floor and they wheeled the stretcher on to take her down to the ward.

The rest of them went back into the operating room, but Jimmy stayed with the husband for a minute. When they were alone the kid took a bottle out of his pocket and took a big swig.

"I don't drink," he said apologetically, "but I feel like I need something right now."

Jimmy took the bottle away from him, tipped it up and drank it all off. "Neither do I," he said, "but right now I feel like I need some, too."

The Old Man was all set for the next case. The emergency had delayed it, and he was in a hurry to get away, so he was annoyed when Jimmy came in late.

Jimmy's mask wasn't on straight, and before they were half through, any one could see that Jimmy was half shot. He was trembling like a leaf; his hands jiggled all over the place.

When they were done, the Old Man called him over just after he peeled off his gown. "Let me smell your breath, son," he said. He sniffed. Then he said, "Son, you're through here. You know the rules."

That's all that was ever said. Jimmy Starr just walked out, and no one ever saw him again. And now he's probably tending his lighthouse, thinking things over and over again and wondering if the girl that turned him down ever knew that he helped usher in that nine-pound boy of hers.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Fashions have an influence on manners and behavior. Member how the short-skirted sisters frisked about like young lambs? Now look at them in their flowing draperies; they're almost demure. Eye shadows put a girl in character. She takes on a theatrical manner, drops her lids, sends forth slanted glances. She knows shadows give her an air of mystery and she wants to live up to it. The lacquered eye shutter is getting to be as necessary a facial decoration as the cherry-red mouth. It may be blue, green, brown, mauve or purple, or fascinating blends. We're all for the creamy preparation. The compact shakes down and flies away.

When the feminine nose takes on permanent blush it makes itself obnoxious. Few women can bear up under that beauty ill. Trouble is the nose is sensitive, sensitive to atmospheric changes and digestive disturbances. Certain cosmetics, even powder, may throw it into a ruddy glare.

Tepid water is best for it; warm of cold excite the capillaries. Ointment of zinc oxide is soothing and healing. It is not wise to use the friendly old powder pad too vigorously, and a light powder is likely to be less disturbing than a heavy one.

A change of diet may help; avoid acids, spicy dishes, rich pastries, condiments. Eat plenty of green vegetables and salads, drink milk and fruit juices. If the trouble develops into a definite inflammation, consult a medical man.

The normal eyebrow begins at the inner corner of the eye. Few brows are normal now; with tweezing going on at a gallop, the space between the eyebrows is much too wide. It robs the face of expression.

When plucking, work on either side, then the line won't be lifted too high. It is when all the weeding is done along the lower edge.

Another weakness is the craze, on the part of Senators, for only thinking sometimes.

SUCCESS NO. 876,557

(From the Lamar, Mo., Democrat.)

We were asking Sheriff Bassett about A. P. (Suitcase) Almon, who after the talk with the representative of the Joplin Machinery Company, in Judge Fink's office, it was evident would be let out on a small fine. Suitcase paid the company for the flues he had stolen. The sheriff says Suitcase got his nickname from a habit he had for a long time of always carrying a grip or suitcase in which to carry anything he happened to pick up. He has plainly done well, as, instead of a suitcase, he now uses a truck.

Q. and A. DEPARTMENT

Dear, Thoughtful Aunt Bella:

It is something that's been on my mind for quite a while now, and although this is the first time in my life I've ever written to a Q. and A. Department, I think it's about time somebody would speak up on the subject. I mean the way young people rush into marriage without knowledge or forethought. A lot of them aren't prepared for marriage, now are they?

Indignant.

Ans.—You said it, baby. Some of them haven't even gotten a divorce.

BIOLOGICAL NOTE

When I was a youth at an innocent age
I wondered, as youngsters will do,
At most of the puzzles on life's cryptic page,
And the questions I asked were not few.
When data on infants I eagerly sought
Through putting my sire on the grill,
He laughed when he told me that babies were brought
By a bird with a very big bill.
A long time has passed, all too quickly, I find,
And the stork and ihs legend have flown,
And I'm answering queries of similar kind
For a questioning lad of my own.
So I grin while I think of the headache I caught
When the Doc put his paw in my till,
As I tell my own youngsters that babies are brought

CROCHETED ACCESSORIES PATTERN 698

Here is a chance for the crocheter to enhance her own wardrobe or delight some friend with crocheted accessories, the smart note in dress today. The all-crochet collar and cuff set (the cuffs do for glove cuffs, too), is a design that is as striking as it is simple. The second set, the last word in daintiness, has crocheted medallions in flower effect, trimming the edge. The body of the bib vest and cuffs is of net. These sets both are equally good for summer or winter dresses. So if you are provident you will quickly do these now and start your stock of Xmas gifts. The beret— very smart in cotton, chenille or wool of similar weight, has a rib effect as an outstanding feature. This gives the beret a decided pattern.

Pattern 698 comes to you with detailed directions for making the articles shown; illustrations of all the articles and the stitches used; and material requirements.

'Twas a Delightful Scene

Well, we got scouting around Newport this summer on a train check.

We got to reading about those society weddings and we thought we would like to see those copper plated rotogravure brides who are so beautiful they have to get married in monkeester netting like they were afraid the groom's relatives were going to sting 'em.

We harnessed up the old Model T to some gasoline. It's over 20 years old and coughs like a distrest chaperon. It jammed up on one of those Connecticut hills. So we took out its engine and turned it into a glider. We glid into Newport on a southwest breeze. Our social position was so lottery that a northeast breeze would have removed us from the Blue Book.

The only person who spoke to us in Newport was a very fine old colonial ancestor who later turned out to be a near-sighted master of hounds. But, we saw one of those big weddings. And, girls, it's strictly the berled cabbage.

The groom was wearing a chop-away coat edged with seaweed. His trousers were striped perpendicularly or thereabouts. He had pearl-buttoned spats, a high, silk hat and an expression like a suburbanite who ate his commutation ticket in mistake for a soda cracker.

The bride was wearing a cheese-cloth veil that looked like a fish net except it should have been on the groom and she and her mother should have been pulling it in.

She carried a bouquet of forget-me-faults that looked like a bale of hay. The groom had forgotten the ring. But that was an even break because the bride's mother had forgotten the handcuffs. So, after the ceremony, we decided that marriage was a verbal agreement with a contract. It gets more verbal and less agreeable each time the happy groom forgets to bob up with that million dollars a year.

If the happy couple were happy, they kept the secret better than a government formula for high explosive. They tottered out of the church with the bride leaning on the groom's arm and the groom swaying in the breeze like a cup defender.

That's all there is to those weddings except the dowry in advance. We went back to New York in the alphabetical flivver not one jot crestfallen. We still possess all our rotogravure ideals and are determined to find the girl who poses for the pretty pictures of society brides.

The Campaign Issues

National Policies Are of Minor Importance in the Gubernatorial Contest

Joseph F. Guffey, Democratic nominee for United States Senator, told an audience at Quakertown on Thursday that he "stands 100 per cent behind the Roosevelt administration and the New Deal." Senator David A. Reed, the Republican nominee, opposes many of the policies of the Roosevelt administration. Here, then, we have a clear-cut issue in the senatorial contest, and one, which, if honestly discussed, should be useful to the citizens in enabling them to decide how to vote.

*Attorney General William A. Schnader, the Re*publican nominee for Governor, shows a disposition to make an issue in his campaign of the Roosevelt administration's treatment of Pennsylvania in the matter of unemployment relief. There is a question if this can properly be made an issue in the gubernatorial contest, since it involves a national policy rather than a state policy.

*It is doubtful if either Mr. Schnader or his Demo*cratic opponent, George H. Earle, could, as Governor, influence the Roosevelt administration's treatment of Pennsylvania in relief matters. They should stick to issues that, if elected, will come under their power and authority. Policies that are determined at Harrisburg rather than at Washington are the real matters at stake in the gubernatorial campaign.

Mr. Guffey and Senator Reed, and the various candidates for the National House of Representatives, might appropriately debate, in their campaign speeches, the Roosevelt administration's relief policy towards Pennsylvania, and we hope they will. It is a matter in which Congress could conceivably intervene, and the voters have a right to know if the Congressional aspirants think that the Washington administration has treated Pennsylvania properly or not.

It would be enlightening to know how Mr. Guffey, who "stands 100 per cent behind the Roosevelt administration," defends the action of the administration in threatening to cut off Federal unemployment relief for Pennsylvania unless Pennsylvania matches the contributions, while at the same time carrying the entire burden of a dozen Southern States—and this in face of the fact that Pennsylvania pays about one-tenth of all the taxes that go into the United States Treasury and has been especially hard hit by the depression.

Mr. Earle said in his Quakertown speech that if elected Governor he would strive to reduce the taxes on real estate 50 per cent. How he proposes to do it is not stated in the published report of the address. Here, certainly, is a live issue, and one that is germane to the gubernatorial office. Does Mr. Earle propose to transfer 50 per cent of the real estate taxes to something else, or does he plan to reduce taxes by cutting the costs of government?

It is to be hoped that it is by cutting the costs of government that Mr. Earle proposes to reduce the taxes on real estate 50 per cent. Undoubtedly a large cut could be made by consolidating counties, townships and school districts, formed in oxcart days but now unnecessary; since in this way it would be possible to remove from the public payroll thousands of political parasites who are consuming the citizens' taxes.

Many of the changes that must be made if oxcart government is to be abolished can be effected only through constitutional revision. It takes years to revise the constitution in the normal way. What we need now is a constitutional convention. Mr. Earle and Mr. Schnader owe it to the public to indicate what their attitude is towards this proposal. It is scarcely an exaggeration to say that there is no more important question before the people of Pennsylvania.

Addressing the annual conference of governors, meeting this year at Mackinac Island, J. H. Choate, Jr., director of the Federal Alcohol Control Administration, spoke disparagingly of the state liquor store system. He thinks there is danger that the "army" of state liquor store employes may be organized into a corrupt political machine. We have seen no evidence as yet that anything of the sort is occurring in Pennsylvania.

Although the citizens of Pennsylvania have not had an opportunity to indicate at the polls what they think of the state liquor store system, we are inclined to believe that the majority approve it. However, it cannot be denied that there is considerable opposition from interests that would profit by a return to the old Brooks Law system of private sale—liquor dealers and lawyers, for example—and that several influential newspapers, notably the Philadelphia Record, advocate a change.

Since, so far as we have been able to observe, none of the candidates for governor or the Legislature is disposed to make an issue of the liquor control system, the inference is that they think most of the people are pretty well satisfied with things as they are. It is rather a relief to have the liquor question taken out of politics. But how long the extremists among the wets and drys will permit it to stay out no one can say.

Apropos of liquor, public sentiment will uphold Judge M. A. Musmanno, we believe, in the rebuke that he administered to two agents of the State Liquor Board for enticing a girl to break the law by selling whisky on Sunday. She at first refused, but they pleaded with her until she yielded. Then they prosecuted her. The agent provocateur system of enforcing the law is repugnant to Americans.

With Hitler and his policies among the things of greatest interest to the world today, an article about the Nazis that is to be published in tomorrow's issue of the American Weekly, the magazine distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph will be found opportune. It tells how Bible truths are being twisted to fit the Nazi paganism.

*The Captain tries to get even with the Katzenjam*mer Kids for some of the pranks they have played on him. They flee from him and take refuge in a barrel. He tries to smoke them out. The results are not at all what you would expect. This hilarious comedy is pictured in tomorrow's issue of Puck, the Comic Weekly Section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. There are many other funnies by famous cartoonists

An Uncharted Course

(Copyright, 1934.)

The Federal Constitution, like the old Frigate its namesake is "staunch and strong."

Its makers "builded better than they knew" when they shaped its enduring structure.

In these unprecedented days the Constitution encounters new dangers—not only the dangers of alien false notions but the closer dangers of swollen bureaucracy and of visionary "experiments."

However, the American people are not going to desert the ship that holds their freedom.

Rather it is their duty to bring the Constitution back to its ancient moorings.

A 'Lesson' In Truth

By Winifred Black

WHAT IS the truth?

I ask you.

Billy would like to know.

Who is Billy? Why, Billy is the fattest, squarest-shouldered, upstandingest little fellow of 4 you ever saw.

His great, round, blue eyes he must have got from his French mother—but his engaging grin, pugnacious nose and red hair undoubtedly came from his Irish father.

Lately Billy decided to adopt a new philosophy—and somehow it worked fine for a time. He is playing out in the back yard with little brother and the toy rabbit, and when something didn't go just as Billy thought it should, in a sudden burst of impatience he threw a rock. Of course, Billy hadn't really meant to break the window—but it broke, just the same.

So for once Billy decided to disclaim any knowledge of the broken window—and what do you think happened? Nothing—for Billy's story was believed.

Naturally the conclusion that came to Billy was a perfectly logical one—from the standpoint of a 4-year-old.

And the next occasion that arose, Billy grinned and stepped right into the middle of Trouble—with a capital T.

This time he hadn't noticed that there was an eyewitness to the "accident".

So mother thought it was quite time for Billy to hear a long and enlightening lecture on truth—and the virtue and reward of always telling it.

Billy listened quite soberly for a long time—somehow the program wasn't going as he had planned, but he'd better see what could be done about it. So mother talked on and on and wound up with: "Now, don't you see how much better it is, Billy Boy always to tell the truth?"

And Billy—well, he just looked at mother with wide, blue eyes dancing mischief and a mouth that just would grin in spite of him, and said: "But what is the truth?"

How did mother answer Billy—who is only four?

I don't know.

How would I have answered him?

I don't know.

How would you have explained to Billy just what the truth is?

I ask you.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

She Swapped Sugar Corn for — Life!

Suppose you'd trained to be a musician—

Then suddenly fallen head over heels in love with a farmer—

And married and borne five children, quick as scat—

Then suddenly, like a swift, cruel dream, saw your husband die—

Leaving you with a swarm of helpless babies—

A load of debt—

A great, sprawling tract of half wild land, heavily mortgaged—

And no notion of doing anything more practical than playing Schubert's "Serenade"—

WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

A slender, bewildered, heartbroken young woman in Maryland faced those questions—

And answered them!

Answered them so bravely that she should put a song in the heart of every discouraged American citizen—and steel into his spine.

Remember that grand old picture of the three ragged men marching forward under a tattered flag—"THE SPIRIT OF '76"? Sure you do. And many a time you're thrilled to think that you belonged to their America.

Well, here's your chance to thrill again. This time it isn't three men, with all the power of a man's world surging behind them, and all the mad glory of a man's war skirling above them. This time it's one lone woman, breaking her own trail, waging her own war against a whole world in which there was not one encouraging voice, but many an unfriendly jeer.

It's often I've wanted to kick my sex on its silly, lazy, 'fraid-cat shin and wished to goodness I'd been born anything but a she. But reading Evelyn Harris' story has made me so proud to be a woman that I'm turning handsprings between these lines for sheer delight in her spunk.

And I'm the girl who knows what that spunk meant, being a rancher myself. A swell lot of slop they're printing these days about the delights of farming—and it certainly looks pretty in a frame. But only the poor devil who's out rassling with the bugs and the gophers, the blights, the frost, the droughts and the fires, not to mention taxes and commission merchants, knows what farm life really means—or costs.

Yet because the man she loved had loved those acres, and dreamed of his children living upon them, Evelyn Harris tackled the job—and saw it through. The mortgage is still unpaid, but only one child remains to be educated And then—

SHE HAD HARDLY A DOLLAR IN CASH. SHE WAS NEVER TO KNOW WHERE THE MONEY FOR THE TAXES WAS TO COME FROM. But—

She traded berries for clothes—

Short ribs for shoes—

Pears for magazine subscriptions—

Sweet corn for books—

Vegetables for schooling—

And MADE THE GRADE.

It's a grand book—"THE BARTER LADY"—and I'm hoping that the public thanks Doubleday Doran with plenty of kopeks for giving it to the world. For here at last is a real record by a real farmer—not the fanciful dreaming of some busted down club man, dictated between cocktails.

Incidentally, those words pack a whale of a wallop at the way Big Business skins farmers. Here's a typical passage:

"Once in a great while I find the time to stroll through a department store, simply to look at the things offered for sale. I noticed some blankets which looked a good bit like those made from our wool, except the tag on them did not give the size as large. I priced them and had a chat with the man in charge of the department.

"He talked frankly when I explained that I was a wool grower, and gave me some interesting figures. When I returned home and compared them, I found that every bit of the reduction was taken from the producer of the raw materials. The firm making the blankets had not lowered their charges, nor had the transportation lines.

"Likewise, prices of milk were reduced to the consumer, and every penny, so far as I could learn, was taken from the man under the cow."

Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michaelis

As This Still Wood

I never pass this wooded place
But that I feel its healing grace,
The gift of coolness and repose
Which from its leafy fastness flows,
And after cruel gusts of heat,
The fitful blasts that sear the street,
Thrice welcome is this breath which tells
Of sparkling brooks and shade-flecked dells.

I never pass this wooded place
Without a vision of your face,
For such unpounted kindliness
Brings hosts of memories, which press
The years aside to let me see
The marvel that life used to be,
The wonder of the world you made
Better because my feet had strayed
Across your path. As this still wood
Revives my strength, so once I stood
Near your soul's realms, and breathed therefrom
New hope and peace, new faith and calm.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

Does it displease the wife to have you engage in games with other women?

Surely, it is done in a most harmless way!

They belong to the same club, and their husbands have other men's wives as partners.

You would be willing to have your wife play with any of your fellow club members, but she does not engage in the same kind of sport.

This is unfortunate perhaps, and you feel that she should not raise any objection to your harmless diversion.

But suppose conditions were reversed, how would you feel about it?

You say it would be all right for her to have other men as partners in her games.

But are you telling the truth when you make such a statement?

You would object to her going to a dance if you were unable to dance, wouldn't you?

That's different, you say, but is it much different?

You are seeking an excuse for your actions, aren't you?

Human Side of the News

George F. Getz, Treasurer of Republican National Committee, Collects Wild Animals as a Hobby

By Edwin C. Hill

IN AFRICA George F. Getz, fighting tigers, elephants, kudus, impallas and oryxes, found the rhinoceros the toughest fighter and the most dangerous antagonist. One wonders how it would compare with that big, horned deficit of the Republican party, with which Mr. Getz, as national party treasurer, is now contending. And one wonder, too, how one who has led a life like his can enjoy himself trying to get a half-nelson on a deficit. Vagaries and side lines of multi-millionaires are often surprising and always interesting.

Mr. Getz, Chicago coal baron, is an animal fancier, or a zoophylist, if the theme demands more dignity. His farm near Holland, Mich., houses lions, leopards, elephants, ocelots, tigers, panthers, a 30-foot python, and enough other assorted fauna to stock any good municipal zoo. Animals, prizefights and big league politics round out his genial later years, yet with his six big coal companies just running along on their own momentum and not interfering much with his main interests.

He likes to go out and round up his own live stock. When he was in Africa in 1928 with his son, George Jr., he took along a crate of boxing gloves, on the long safari through the Tan-gan-yu-ka territory in East Africa. When the black porters were inclined to become mutinous, he and George put on the gloves and staged a fast bout, to divert and pacify the black boys. The boys were delighted and insisted on putting on the gloves, but the one who got smacked reached for his knife and only his fumbling glove saved the other chap.

Mr. Getz was allied with the late Tex Rickard in several sporting adventures, including the Dempsey-Tunney fight in 1927. Venerable bland and Romanesque, he is an imposing figure at most of the better ringsides—and at the great political conventions, too.

Career Like Alger Story

THE BOY came from Mechanicsburg, Pa., leaving home at twelve—becoming a Baltimore and Ohio messenger in Chicago, starting his coal climb as a clerk at 17, paid his way out with diligently gathered millions, and into that happier domain of his boyhood dreams—lions and tigers and orators and leather pushers. He was a telegraph operator in his later boyhood years.

Both those who shepherd millions and those who have lived long with the roar of the crowd often turn with impassioned interest to some balance brought forward from their youth.

The late George Eastman, Rochester camera magnate, used to make huge and elaborate chocolate cakes in the kitchen of his mansion; he kept a cow in his back yard; he whittled in the attic at night; he had a passion for calendar reform; he collected trick cigaret ejectors of gold and platinum; he toyed with his huge pipe organ.

The late William G. Bixby, of shoe polish fame, was a nut fancier. On his big estate at Balwin, Long Island, he had more than 500 varieties of nut trees. Eagerly he scouted new species, experimented in grafting, nursed, manicured and fondled his precious nut trees and kept up a Niagara of correspondence with nut addicts all over the world.

Elephants are the deep preoccupation of Matthew C. Brush, of the American International Corporation—but not the two-ton breed. His are little elephants of ivory, teak, gold, silver, crystal and brass. He has more than 2,000 of them—the best collection of the kind in the world. Wherever he goes, he carries them in his pockets, gloating over them like a lad with a pocket full of glassies and agates.

Samuel Untermeyer, the great lawyer, lives his leisure hours with his magnificent treasures of orchids, on his famous estate, "Greystone," near Yonkers. For many years a regal orchid from his greenhouse has graced his coat lapel each day.

When President Roosevelt climbs out of his hair shirt, after a hard day's work, he forgets his cares with his great stamp collection. He has about 10,000 stamps, with groups and series carefully filled out and indexed. He finds boyish delight here.

German Premier Collects Lions

PREMIER Hermann Goering, of Germany, collects lions. But Adolph Hitler finds a gentler pastime in hoarding plants. At his Alpine estate at Obersalzberg near Berechtesgaden, he has a large collection of rare and exotic plants. His obsession, however, is to find plants which bloom at unusual times. Perhaps, with his Herculean work of co-ordinating this and that, he likes to put in his off hours on something surprising and unco-ordinated.

Clarence Darrow is a cross-word puzzle fiend, and packs around drummers' joke books. His favorite is that old book "Good Gravy," which he always has somewhere near by.

"Alfonsito," eldest son of the former king of Spain is a connoisseur of pigs and a famous collector.

H. G. Wells, writing volumes against war and soldiering, puts in long hours with his collection of lead soldiers, deploying them in terrific battles up and down his living room floor.

Winston Churchill is a painter of note.

Lord Grey was a bird fancier.

The Prince of Wales specializes in a musical library, principally jazz.

Kathleen Norris hoards stories of murder trials.

George White has the world's greatest collection of black neckties, and Eddie Cantor collects hats.

King Boris of Bulgaria collects locomotives.

Dr. Thaddeus P. Hyatt has the world's greatest collection of fairy pictures.

Army Air Corps Reforms Urged by Committee

By James T. Williams, Jr.

AS GEORGE ELIOT truly said, "facts are stubborn things." Only by facing them, however, and following steadfastly where they lead, can a Congress legislate wisely and an executive administer effectively.

Thanks to the diligence and distinction with which the Baker committee has done the work assigned to it, the facts about military aviation have been developed and digested, its conclusions have been arrived at in light of these facts and its recommendations follow where the facts lead.

Many of the administrative changes in the Army Air Corps, urged by the committee, can be made immediately by executive action. Others must await the convening of the new Congress because they require Congressional action.

President Roosevelt and Secretary Dern can clear the way for the legislative enactments essential to carry out the recommendations of their committee by putting into effect forthwith the recommendations that await only executive approval.

For example, the President can announce upon his return that "definite decision," which, in the judgment of the Baker committee, "will remove all uncertainty as to the future national defense position of the Army Air Corps" and "should be announced and adhered to for some reasonable period."

* * *

Can Authorize Advance in Rank

THE PRESIDENT can direct that the provisions of the air corps act of 1926, authorizing temporary advance in rank for air corps officers in order that their rank may be commensurate with responsibility, shall be placed in force immediately.

This ought to have been done in 1926. The delay in providing for this temporary advance in rank has seriously retarded the development of the air corps.

The President can require that the cadets of the United States Military Academy shall have air experience of a minimum of 20 hours as a part of the regular course at the academy—another vital recommendation by the Baker committee that ought to be put into effect at West Point immediately.

The President can also require each officer hereafter commissioned in the Army in peace to serve two years in a combat arm other than the Air Corps, and upon completion of this detail, if he is physically qualified, that he shall take the regular established course at the Air Corps' primary and advanced training schools.

The President can extend the tour of active duty for reserve officers and flying cadets, which at present is altogether too short and ought to have been extended years ago.

The President can direct that all Air Corps officers with 15 or less years of service shall be qualified pilots and that they shall fly as pilots not less than 100 hours each year and include in that flying "a reasonable percentage of cross-country instrument, night and formation flying."

Those officers unable to meet the standard qualifications can be utilized or disposed of in one of several ways recommended by the Baker committee.

* * *

Funds Needed To Expand Training

THE PRESIDENT can allot from emergency funds at his disposal the hundred million dollars that has been denied the Air Corps by the failure of recent Congresses to carry out the five-year program adopted by the Congress in 1926.

These funds are badly needed to carry out other recommendations of the Baker committee to increase the equipment of the Air Corps and expand its training.

As the constitutional commander-in-chief of the Army and Navy, the President is responsible for the administration of the air corps. It should at all times be as efficient in personnel and material as the funds at his disposal can make it.

In view of the prompt approval in principle by the Secretary of War of the Baker committee's conclusions and recommendations, which, he declares, "furnish a sound basis" for the proper and efficient development of the air corps, it is reasonable to assume that Secretary Dern spoke for the President.

That being true, it is reasonable to expect that the President will soon "suit the action to the word" by inaugurating all the changes recommended by the Baker committee for the improvement of the Army air corps that do not require Congressional action.

And the sooner this reorganization begins the sooner public sentiment will organize in support of those legislative changes which the new Congress cannot afford to refuse to make, because they are changes dictated by the facts and they follow where the facts lead.

Text for Today

Corinthians, i:18.

For the preaching of the cross is to them that perish foolishness; but unto us which are saved it is the power of God. I

Will Rogers Says:

HONOLULU, July 28.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Well, we blew in here this morning, on the first leg of our long hop and imagine who we run into. You wouldnt guess in a year. You remember the President we lost just after Congress adjourned. The one that was so tickled that he disappeared. Well he is out here at some Japanese islands in the middle of the Pacific. Just looks fine, same great smile that he used to use on those Congressmen and make em bring stocks out of the water for him. These folks want their sugar quota raised. But he just smiles at em. He is the worlds only man that can turn you down and you go out liking him. The whole of Honolulu is doing the hula, or riding a surf board for him today. If he dont raise their quota, I will go over his head and take it up with Gen. Hugh Johnson, and get it done for em. For we cant let the Garden of Eden be dissatisfied.

Will Rogers

Yours, WILL ROGERS.
